SAYS RUSSELL WITNESSES BOUGHT

CONSPIRACY IS CHARGED BY SIMPSON

In a final whirl of fiery Western oratory, Senator Leslie A. Simpson, the North Dakota counsel for Claimant No. 1 in the amazing Russell will case, brought to a fervid conclusion this afternoon his argument to Judge Lawton in behalf of his client.

For three days Senator Simpson has been talking. Every day he fought with all the weapons of frontier oratory. He abated none of his bitterness toward the respondent's side on this closing day. He said deliberately:

"Witnesses here have been paid from stolen funds for the purpose of covering themselves."

BEGS JUDGE TO PICK OUT SCOUNDREL.

Just before that he approached the table where William C. Russell, Eugene C. Upton and Ferdinand C. Almy were seated. Raising his hand to emphasize his words, Senator Simpson said:

"In this case, Your Honor, there is some rotten scoundrel. Either this man, pointing to Claimant No. 1, or Eugene C. Upton or Ferdinand C. Almy is the man. I challenge Your Honor by word to say that my client is the scoundrel!"

Women were at the court house in East Cambridge as early as 6 o'clock, waiting outside in the chilling rain for first chance to rush in when the doors were opened.

As usual, when the doors of the court room were opened, the apartment was filled instantly, while hundreds were disappointed in their efforts to enter.

This was the 124th day of this remarkable trial. It stands as a record now for an identity hearing. The famous Tichborne case in England ran 118 days.

Judge Takes the Case.

Senator Simpson was scheduled to consume the rest of to-day's session in his argument and to finish before court adjourns to-day.

Judge Lawton will then take the case under advisement and will announce his decision later.

In reaching his decision Judge Lawton will not be affected in any way by the claim of "Tyson Dan," or Claimant No. 2, as he is called. When Judge Lawton has made his decision—or possibly before—Claimant No. 2 will file his claims with Judge Lawton. The judge will then grant him a hearing but the filing of this claim and the hearing which may be granted, will have absolutely no effect on Judge Lawton's decision relative to Claimant No. 1.

Judge Lawton has said the issue at trial is whether or not Claimant No. 1 is Daniel Blake Russell or James Delbert Russell.

Bitter Irony in Speech.

William C. Russell and Eugene C. Upton, of Attorneys Berry & Upton, were in court to-day for the first time since Senator Simpson began his argument.

Yesterday Senator Simpson attacked Upton bitterly. During the morning session to-day the fiery North Dakota lawyer gave most of his time to witnesses for the respondent. Of Attorney Upton he made remark:

"I had those witnesses on hand to prove anything he wanted to prove."

Senator Simpson said of Edward W.

MRS. EDDY'S OLD HOME BURNED

CONCORD, N. H., April 8.—The old Baker homestead, located in the town of Bow but over the city line, and the birthplace of Mary Baker G. Eddy, was destroyed by fire to-day. The fire started from some unknown cause. In two hours the house was burned to the ground.

The house was an old-fashioned story-and-a-half structure and was built by the father of Mrs. Eddy, Mark Baker, in the early part of the last century. Mrs. Eddy was born here in 1821. For years the place has been looked upon with veneration by the followers of Mrs. Eddy.

It has always remained in the possession of the Baker family. Congressman Henry M. Baker, one of Mrs. Eddy's trustees, was also born there. W. E. Perrigo has rented the place for some time. He does not know the cause of the fire. The damage will exceed $3,000.

BIG LOSS IN WHEAT CROP

WASHINGTON, April 8.—The early winter crop of Winter wheat on April 1 was 425,270,000 bushels, new method, according to an announcement by the Department of Agriculture to-day.

This compares with 595,383,000 bushels December, 1909; 373,550,000 April, 1909; 492,906,000 April, 1908, and 493,970,000 April, 1907.

The estimated yield per acre of Winter wheat was thirteen bushels, new method.

This compares with 15.1 December, 1909; 12.5 April, 1909, 15.9 April, 1908, and 15.5 April, 1907, old method.

The estimated rye crop was 35,980,000 bushels, new method.

This compares with 35,980,000 December, 1909; 30,380,000 April, 1909, and 32,643,000 April, 1908.

The estimated yield per acre of rye was 10.7 bushels, new method.

This compares with 10.7 December, 1909; 15.7 April, 1909, and 16.2 April, 1908.

NEW CLUE TO STOLEN BANK LOOT

Startling developments to show that a large share of the half-million dollars stolen from the Southbridge Savings Bank by Treasurer John A. Hall is hidden away somewhere will soon be brought out by the legislative committee investigating the looting of the bank.

To-day the committee was in secret session, planning a line of investigation for next week which will surprise even those who believed they knew the worst about the robbery.

A mysterious witness, who is said to know about the disappearance of the strong box in which Hall kept his money, and the caretaker of Hall's Summer home are being sought.

Closeted with the committee was Deputy Chief Neal of the State police.

Robert Martin, Hall's brother-in-law, is expected to throw more light on the disappearance of the strong box, which is said to have contained at least $30,000. The committee to-day examined Martin at great length and got from him a partial story of how he went to the house at the request of his sister and took the box containing the securities. These were turned over to her.

The committee will resume its hearing on Monday.

TICKET SALE OPENS FOR PENSION CONCERT

Tickets for the pension fund concert of the Symphony Orchestra, which will be given in Symphony Hall on Sunday evening, April 17th, went on sale at the box office at Symphony Hall this morning. The concert will be Madame Marcella Sembrich, who has given her services for this cause, and she will sing the "Inviolanti" aria from Verdi's "Ernani" and a group of songs with pianoforte accompaniment. The first part of the program will be devoted entirely to Wagner, the selections being the prelude to "The Meistersingers," the prelude to "Lohengrin," the prelude to "Parsifal," the prelude and "Love Death" from "Tristan and Isolde" and the overture to "Tannhauser." Between the aria and the songs the orchestra will play Mr. Martin Loeffler's "The Devil's Villanelle."

SAYS BOTTLE BILL IS UNNECESSARY

Reasonable time should elapse between the passage of the Bar and Bottle Bill and the time of its taking effect, according to G. A. A. Peavey, former City Solicitor of Cambridge. Mayor Calvin College of Northampton, according to dispatches, says: "It is my opinion that the Bar and Bottle Bill will not promote temperance anywhere. I believe in the present law which proclaims the sense of intoxicating liquor as a great evil and seeks to control it as far as possible. The main argument for this law will be that bottles are sold to people who are drunk. That is unlawful now. What warrant is there for a change? How will make present criminals law-abiding?"

ONE DEAD, 25 HURT IN TRIPLE WRECK

ROME, N. Y., April 8.—One man was killed, one fatally injured and twenty-five persons seriously hurt in a triple wreck of two freight trains and the fast West-bound express of the New York Central on the water tank just outside of this city to-day.

The man who was fatally hurt was an employe of the railroad riding in the caboose of the local freight.

INSURANCE ORDER IS ENJOINED HERE

Judge Rugg of the Supreme Court to-day issued an injunction against the Workmen's Circle, a New York benefit insurance company, to restrain it from doing business in this State in violation of the new law. The bill was brought by Attorney-General Malone at the instigation of the Insurance Commissioners. The Workmen's Circle has twenty lodges and more than 2,000 members in this State. It promises to pay a sick benefit of $6 a week and a death benefit of $200.

FIND TAUNTON GIRL LOST IN NEW YORK

NEW YORK, April 8.—A girl who was found wandering bewildered on the street at Twenty-ninth street and Ninth avenue early to-day told Magistrate Corrigan that her name was Florence Smith and that she lived at No. 7 Maple street, Taunton. She is but thirteen years old, she was turned over to the Gerry Society, and her father was communicated with. She has given up her desire to see the world and is willing to return home.

BALLINGER CHARGES BY COLLIER'S PROBED

SEATTLE, April 8.—A special meeting of the Seattle Bar Association has been called for next week to take action on the charges of unprofessional condition made against Richard A. Ballinger, a member of the association, by Collier's Weekly. A committee investigated the charges six years ago and exonerated Mr. Ballinger.

EARTHQUAKE AGAIN SHAKES CALABRIA

ROME, April 8.—A severe earthquake shook Galitea, Calabria. Subterranean rumblings accompanied the shock, and the inhabitants were panic-stricken. According to the first reports, little damage was done to this case. I submit, Your Honor, that not much belief can be attached to the statement of a pseudo detective, who admits that he never sees his brains unless the money is planted down on the table in advance.

"This witness admitted that he gave little thought or consideration to what Mr. Glover said. How much confidence can be placed in the testimony of a person who admits that he paid no attention to what was said by a possible client and who said that what was said to him was so unimportant that he placed no dependence on it. The testimony of Detective Blackmore is preposterous.

Question of "Perjury."

"Has Your Honor considered what downright perjury would mean in this case? The lips of the man who he says told him this story are sealed by death. There is no danger from that source. Blackmore has nothing to fear. He places the interview in the basement of the Hotel Touraine, and in spite of my efforts and search they cannot produce any verification of it anywhere. I tried to find out from the witness the number of the telephone that Blackmore said Glover gave to him. It would prove that Blackmore was an honest man, that he was telling the truth. He produced the book all right, but the page was gone, and the only explanation he could give was that when a good customer died he tore out the page from his book. Where is there anything in this

TRAIN BREAKS IN TWO GOING OVER A BRIDGE

Several passengers were cut by flying glass, panic reigned and 5,000 commuters were delayed from fifteen minutes to a half-hour early this morning, as an inbound accommodation train from Mattapan stopped in the yards of the New Haven Railroad to-day, the draw of the huge rolling roller lift draw bridge across the Fort Point Channel suddenly raised, lifting a passenger car high in the air.

Some of the passengers who were injured were:

William A. Jordan, No. 25 Tonawanda street, Dorchester, badly bruised and cut, taken home.

George Harney, No. 100 Dakota street, badly bruised and shaken up, compelled to go home.

H. C. Browne, the Welsbach Company, Simmons street, badly bruised and shaken.

George Richards, advertising manager of the Jordan Marsh Company, badly sprained ankle.

Mr. Tufts, buyer for the Jordan Marsh Company, badly shaken up.

Unknown man, badly cut by flying glass.

W. F. Wood of the R. H. Stearns Company, bruised.

Elevated the Draw.

That no person was killed seems like a miracle. About one dozen newly laden incoming trains were delayed in the yards for many minutes until the wrecked car could be detached from its train, the draw span lowered and the damaged car removed.

The train which leaves Fleld's corner for Boston on the Mattapan branch of the Midland Division of the New Haven, and which is due in the South Station at 8 a.m. was halted by a block signal just as it passed over the draw span. The man in the smoking car still stood on the bridge, although the conductor and the draw tender did not know that.

The bridge is regularly raised over the channel between 7.50 and 8 o'clock every morning. That is a railroad regulation.

Because of the train's being halted where it was the draw tender failed to see the smoking car which was crowded with commuters standing on the draw. He started to elevate the great draw.

Passengers screamed and rushed for the door as the car reached higher and higher in the air. Some by-standers and passengers declare that it was almost at angle of forty-five degrees when a locomotive headed along going in the opposite direction.

The engineer of this locomotive saw the danger and wildly gave the alarm with the whistle. The draw tender then saw the danger.

Two Cars Damaged.

The tow and sides of the car-king car crashed into the passenger car standing directly in front. The higher the draw raised the car the harder it crashed into the car in front of it. The copper sheathing of the smoker's roof gave way, and the sides and roof frame work crushed like cardboard.

Passengers rushed from both of the cars. When the draw tender stopped the bridge he was unable to lower it completely, the car catching on the draw arch and iron abutments. A heavy overhead girder of the draw smashed through the roof of the smoker, and several passengers were cut as the splinters flew and the car was shattered.

One man's hand was badly crushed. His name was not secured, as he hurried away to have the injury dressed.

The wrecked car was detached from the balance of the train, which went into the station a half-hour late. The car was finally released from the draw, and heavy chains were halted on both sides of the wreck.

RAILROAD WAGE INCREASE.

ROANOKE, Va., April 8.—A 5 per cent. wage increase was to-day announced by the Norfolk & Western Railroad for all employes receiving less than $155 a month and who have not had an increase since December 1, 1907. The Central Railroad of Georgia announces a 5 per cent. wage increase for its engineers.

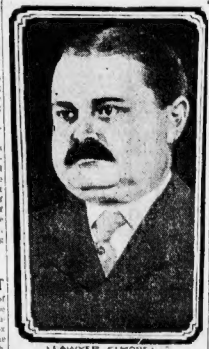
LAWYER ELMORE, WHO PLEADS FOR GLOVER'S WIDOW



"LAWYER ELMORE."

900 EMIGRANTS MUTINY; BATTLE WITH RESCUERS

DOVER, England, April 8.—The 900 emigrants transferred from the burning steamer Cairnroma yesterday to the steamer Kanawha, mutinied to-day. British warships, which sent out the first news of the affair, were compelled to send armed guards aboard the Kanawha to hold in check the angered, hysterical men and women.

The prospect of returning to England, when they thought their journey across the Atlantic begun, is believed to have led to the uprising.

First reports of the mutiny were meagre, but told of attacks on the crew after deputations from the nine hundred emigrants had failed to induce the captain to turn toward America. The crew were compelled to beat back the leaders with clubs and drawn pistols.

Women led the uprising of the rescued passengers and fought alongside the men. The crew of the Cairnroma, fighting the fire in the bunkers, was too exhausted to offer much resistance. Many of the end grants were thrown into irons after the blockades arrived.

CABINET MEMBERS WILL NOT RESIGN

WASHINGTON, April 8.—Secretary of the Treasury MacVeagh to-day made the following statement regarding the reports to the effect that he is to retire from the cabinet.

"I have no intention of retiring from President Taft's cabinet. I do not know the source of the rumor being circulated in regard to my reported resignation."

Secretary Carpenter, on behalf of President Taft, and speaking officially to-day, denied the report that Secretaries Knox and MacVeagh are to retire from the cabinet.

PUGILIST WENT BAD.

NEW YORK, April 8.—Caspar Leon, the once famous featherweight pugilist, was sentenced to six months on the island by Magistrate O'Connor in the Harlem police court to-day on the complaint of his wife, who charged him with being an habitual drunkard, and not supporting her. This was his third arrest, but the first time sentenced.

STONE QUITS BROWNS.

ST. LOUIS, April 8.—Outfielder George Stone to-day notified friends in St. Louis that he will not join the Browns this year. His salary was recently cut from $5,000 to $3,500.

GLOVER CASE GOES TO JUDGE

The arguments in the Glover will case were finished to-day, and upon the decision of Judge McIntire who has taken the case under advisement will depend whether or not this remarkable controversy stops here and the contestants fail to break the document, or whether it will continue and the contestants be allowed to delve as deeply as they may be able into the mystery that surrounds the murder of Clarence F. Glover.

ELMORE DECLARES GLOVER SPOKE THE TRUTH.

In his closing argument Lawyer Samuel B. Elmore dramatically paraphrased William Jennings Bryan when he declared, in speaking of Mrs. Lillian M. Glover, that "Thou shalt not sacrifice this woman upon the altar of hatred."

Elmore declared that he believed Glover told the truth to his dying moments when he stated ten times that Hattie Le Blanc hurt him.

While Elmore told of the affection that was between Clarence F. Glover and his brother Seymour, the latter went in the witness chair and denied that he was with a bitter denunciation of the other Glover brothers. He said that they were heartless and cruel and that they put the lie on their brother's statement when they refused to believe that Hattie Le Blanc killed Clarence F. Glover.

Elmore's Argument.

Attorney Elmore resumed his argument at 10 o'clock. He said:

"At the close of the session yesterday I had analyzed the testimony of the Glover brothers and began an analysis of the testimony of Detective Blackmore. His testimony I regard as absolutely without weight as establishing anything in regard to undue influence. In the cross-examination two things were elicited which show that his testimony, even though he was trying to testify honestly, was of little importance

VAHEY BOUND TO ENTER RACE DESPITE MAYOR

James H. Vahey will be a candidate for the Democratic nomination for Governor next Fall unless the leaders in the party can prove to him that it would be for the interest of the party that he withdraw.

Mr. Vahey denies that he has had any conference with Mayor Fitzgerald or in any way discussed the gubernatorial nomination with the Mayor, and says he has not sought his advice in the matter.

The only question that will be considered by the former candidate, according to his friends, will be the good of the party. He does not believe that it is for the interest of the party that he should step out of the way for a man with a barrel of money, or to oblige politicians who believe in running a man with a barrel.

To-morrow Mr. Vahey will give out a statement defining his stand on the gubernatorial situation. His friends point out that when he took up a hopeless cause two years ago and made the race when there was no money in the Democratic treasury, he financed practically the entire State campaign and left himself so deep in debt that he has not been able to pay it off yet. They point out that his work in that campaign, when he kept the party before the public, and in the fall campaign, when wonderful gains were made on both sides of the ticket, deserves some recognition. The gains made in the last campaign his friends attribute to Joe Foss. They believe that the popularity of Mr. Vahey has been growing. That his campaign of the year before won him many new friends who turned to him last year, and the number will be even more increased this year. With such a little favor the movement to oust Vahey from the leadership of the party is being received throughout Massachusetts as shown in Lawrence last night. Democratic leaders in that city learned that he was in town trying a case. They invited him down to the Roust Club, and when he got there he found practically the entire leadership of the party in that section present.

Former Senators, Representatives, Mayors and members of the present City Government and City Committee were present and assured him of their hearty support.

Mr. Vahey did not make any statement, except to thank the men for their loyalty. He said he would make a public statement that would clearly outline his attitude.

PAPERS ARE DEMANDED OF BALLINGER

WASHINGTON, April 8.—The Ballinger-Pinchot investigation committee to-day adopted a motion calling on Secretary Ballinger to supply immediately all the papers and documents that the committee might call for.

When the investigating committee resumed its inquiry Attorney Brandeis took up the house raised by Secretary Ballinger protesting against the production of further papers in the case by the interior department. In a letter to the committee Mr. Ballinger had declared that the demands made by the attorney for the production of papers and documents were "an oblique attempt to control the manner in which the evidence should be presented" and "a mere fishing process."

Mr. Brandeis called attention to the fact that Mr. Ballinger in his first letter to the committee had said that he desired the fullest investigation; again he had declared that he did not wish to be represented by counsel, but now he appeared with a scheme which Mr. Brandeis characterized as "an attempt to withhold evidence."

Replying, Attorney Vertrees denied the course of Secretary Ballinger. He said all documents had been presented which had been asked for and which had any bearing on the case, and he now thought time to call a halt on what Mr. Ballinger had termed the "fishing process."

"We have become tired," he said, "of this man Jones and this man Glavis sitting at Mr. Brandeis' ear and suggesting that he call for this thing and for that, simply to harass the secretary."

VERDICT TO-MORROW IN SAYLER TRIAL

WATSEKA, Ill., April 8.—Mrs. Lucy Sayler, Dr. W. R. Miller and John C. Grunden, on trial for killing Banker J. Byron Sayler, are making plans for their lives following their acquittal, which they believe is inevitable. Mrs. Sayler will go away to rest while her daughter, Goldie, who is worn out and on the verge of nervous breakdown, due to her worry about her mother's condition, Dr. Miller intends to return to Crescent City and to his practice, while aged John Grunden will return to the soldiers' home. The argument before the jury was to-day will end by to-morrow and a verdict is looked for to-morrow night.

PROBE DEATH OF TWO MEN IN POISON MYSTERY

WESTERLY, R. I., April 8.—The authorities are investigating the sudden and mysterious deaths of Charles R. Hood, thirty-three years of age, and Henry Larrow, sixty-three, Hood's father-in-law. Both men had been ill and each drank some whiskey. Their deaths followed soon afterward. It is believed that poison had been put into the whiskey.

Hood, who was not a drinking man, partook of the liquor on retiring Tuesday night. In the morning he became violently ill and died a few hours later. While an autopsy was being performed on Hood, Larrow, who had also taken some of the whiskey, died.

An autopsy was made on him also, and some of his organs removed for analysis. The authorities say that both autopsies indicated the presence of poison in the bodies.

Hood and his wife had lived with Mr. and Mrs. Larrow here for several years. Previous to coming to Westerly they made their home in several nearby places. Hood was a teamster.

TIGERS SEND FIRST PLAYER TO MINORS

DETROIT, Mich., April 8.—The Detroit Baseball Club to-day released First Baseman Fox Lisle to the Chattanooga club of the Southern League for the sum of $2,000, with an option on his purchase at the end of the season for the same sum. Lisle was last year the leading batsman of the Tri-State League and showed himself a fine player with Detroit, though handicapped by the fact that he is a left-handed batsman, a commodity in which the Tigers are at present deemed too heavy.

Tom Jones will play first base for Detroit, as usual, unless beaten out by Ness, the Wisconsin League recruit, who is still on the staff and will be kept for several weeks at least. This is the first release of the large squad of Tigers under Jennings's command.

GAYNOR'S SON SAYS BRIDE IS BIGAMIST

Alleging that Miss May Queen, to whom he was secretly married a year ago last December while she was a pupil at the New England Conservatory here, was already married and undivorced, when he wed her to the altar, Rufus William Gaynor, oldest son of Mayor Gaynor of New York City, has begun proceedings to have his marriage annulled. Dispatches to-day from New York say that Young Gaynor has discovered that his bride's real name was Marie Odde and that under that name she was married on June 1, 1903 at Somerville to Salvatore Guidi. In June, 1908, Guidi sued her in the courts of Texas for divorce, alleging abandonment. Gaynor has submitted the records of her marriage and the divorce suit in Texas as evidence before a referee appointed to hear his divorce case.

COAL STRIKE MAY EXTEND INTO AUGUST

CHICAGO, April 8.—Just as coal consumers and the public generally were beginning to believe that the 75,000 coal miners of Illinois would return to work by May 1, and that all other States would settle their difficulties quickly, it developed to-day that the miners and operators are having trouble in agreeing.

The Illinois miners are the latest recruits to the ranks of the dissatisfied. John H. Walker, president of the union in this district, is authority for the statement that the strike may not end before August.

GERMAN 'ARMY JOKE' ENJOYING NEW YORK LIFE

NEW YORK, April 8.—Frederick Wilhelm Voigt, "the military joke of Germany," is enjoying himself in New York.

Frederick Wilhelm Voigt is the man who three years ago hired a second-hand uniform of a captain in the Second Prussian Guards, ordered a German regiment to follow him, which it did blindly, and then arrested the Mayor of Koepernick (a suburb of Berlin) and helped himself to the town treasury.

Of course he was arrested subsequently and served a short term in jail, but the fun-loving people of Germany enjoyed his prank so hugely that they got up a fund for him and he is still living upon it, the amounts, they say, to something like $100 a month.

Voigt was nothing but a village cobbler until he donned the uniform. Then he was whatever he chose to style himself, as the outcome showed.

Whether he'll land in vaudeville, on the lecture platform or in the Ellis Island pen on account of being an "undesirable alien" is a problem. But just at present he's having a fine time drinking beer in the Teutonic cafes and signs his name to postal cards (25 cents each).

"Captain Kaiser Koepernick" was found in a German resort at Third avenue and Eighty-fifth street. His friends had revealed him, and he was greeted by "Sieg Heil" and "Hoch!" and other patriotic methodes as he entered.

"Why did you pretend to be a military officer and fool the German people?" he was asked when his cards had been filled and his cigar was drawing well.

"I began," he said, "when I was persuaded by German officers. I got what you call it—full, a couple of times, and I was locked up.

"So one day I made up my mind it was the uniform that made the man. I with a uniform on was as good as the officers. So I hired one. Then I met a lot of soldiers, gave a few orders and they followed me."

ACCUSED BY POLICE, FREED BY JUDGE

In the South Boston Police Court to-day Judge Fallon discharged Mrs. Mary Ridge of No. 421 Second street, arrested last night for drunkenness, in spite of the testimony of two patrolmen that "her breath smelled of liquor" and "she was staggering against the wall." Patrolmen David McDonald and John Riordon were sent to investigate the complaint of a taxicab driver, who claimed that Mrs. Ridge had not paid him. Judge Fallon, discharging the woman, looked angrily at the officers.

Heard in the Subway.

"Hello, Jimsky, what seems to be the matter?"

"A die-up apparently. I've been waiting 45 minutes for my car."

"Never mind, we'll not starve. I have two large bottles of P. R. with me, which is meat and drink for 24 hours at least."

TO-DAY'S CABLE NEWS

Up to Midnight, London Time

Two Men Fly 102 Miles in 2 Hours; New Record.

PARIS—Records for time and distance in the flights of aeroplanes carrying two persons were broken to-day at Mourmalon, when Daniel Kinet, in a Farman bi-plane, accompanied by another man, covered 102 miles in two hours and twenty minutes.

Persia Wants John D.'s Cash.

TEHERAN—The executive committee of the Association for Intellectual Development in Persia has sent a cablegram to America, begging John D. Rockefeller "in the name of human brotherhood and liberty to found in Teheran an educational institution through the American Legation." The message adds that "this will bless countless generations, proving an eternal monument to Mr. Rockefeller's benefactions in Persia."

Enchantress Laughs in Court.

VENICE—Countess Tarnowska, "the enchantress," accused of plotting the murder of Count Kamarowski, her husband, to-day laughed satirically while witnesses testified for the co-defendants. M. Galpeine, a St. Petersburg lawyer, testified that Prilukoff, one of her admirers, was "a model citizen." At this the beautiful prisoner's face was lined in loud peals of laughter, causing the court to call for order and threaten her arrest.

Open Air Free in Germany.

BERLIN—For the first time in the history of Prussia official permission has been given to hold a political meeting in the open air. It has been granted to the Democratic Union and allows the members of that organization to assemble in the Humboldthain, one of Berlin's parks, next Sunday, for the purpose of discussing the Prussian franchise reform bill.

Countess Clare Freed.

PARIS—The Court has acquitted the Countess Clare and Count Ladislaus Zoltyski of the charges brought by Mlle. Wilhelmina Kemper, who claimed that she was victimized out of $97,000, which was to have been used to finance the matrimonial projects of Prince Victor of Thurn and Taxis. The Court found that the Countess was not responsible for the loan.

Port for Northern Luzon.

HONGKONG—Sir Clifton Robinson has returned here from a visit to the Philippines, where he went to investigate the possibility of creating a port in the north of Luzon Island, which point would be only twenty-four hours' sail from Hongkong.

COMEDY OF A TAXI, BEING THE TALE OF A SMOOTH FARE DODGER

Betrayed on the Gasolene Circuit.

A simple comedy of interurban life.

ACT I.

Time—In the gloaming.

Scene—Outside of "Muggsy" McGraw's billiard parlor, northeast corner of Broadway and Forty-second street, New York City.

THE CHAUFFEUR GOT A GLIMPSE OF THE PASSENGERS' ROLL.

Enter Stranger, dressed sweller than Charlie Dillingham or J. Rufus Wallingford.

CHAUFFEUR (hereinafter called Chauf.)—"Taxi, sir?"

STRANGER (calmly) "Good idea. Take me to Bridgeport."

CHAUF.—"Bridgeport? Yessir, certainly, sir." (Sotto) "This is a steady job all right."

ACT II.

Time—More gloaming.

Scene—Bridgeport, Ct.

Enter taxicab with regular Broadway aplat. Stops upstage.

CHAUF. — "Bridgeport, sir — lemme see—" Business of inspecting register.

STRANGER (still calm)—"Oh, yes Bridgeport—well, I never did like Bridgeport but I guess we'll put up here for the night. Never mind the register now. I want you to keep on with me to New Haven in the morning."

CHAUF.—"New Haven—in the morning—yessir, certainly sir." (Sotto) "I bore my wife and kids, but oh, you passenger."

Business of sitting up for the night. Stranger displays fat wad of real money and looks better than ever to the chauf.

ACT III.

Time—Next morning.

Scene—The scene changes in rapid succession to represent an able-bodied taxicab eating up the road to New Haven.

ACT IV.

Time—Enough later.

Scene—Front of Hotel Garde, New Haven. Enter taxicab at metropolitan clip.

CHAUF.—"New Haven, sir."

Business of looking at fare register.

STRANGER—"New Haven—Huh! dunno's I care about this speck on the map. Let's go to a real town. Take me to Boston."

CHAUF. — "B-B-B-Boston — yessir, certainly, sir." (Sotto) Anyhow the rent's all paid at home."

Interval of elapsed time to allow one score taxicab to hop from New Haven, Conn., to Waltham, Mass.

ACT V.

Time—Ever so much later.

Scene—Front of a Waltham hotel.

Enter taxicab making haughty clatter. Taxicab halts.

STRANGER—"What molecule is this place?"

CHAUF.—"Waltham, sir—they make watches here."

STRANGER (thoughtfully)—"Waltham—Waltham—Lemme see, I knew a Waltham man once. I met him in Kokomo Walt."

Stranger enters hotel. Chauffeur waits.

EPILOGUE.

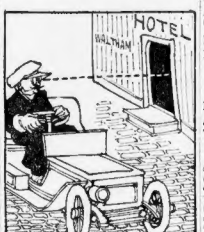
Chauffeur still waiting.

Second Epilogue (added feature).

CHAUF.—"I wonder—reads fare register—Jumping Jared—$171.40—I guess I'll—"

Chauf. beats it into hotel. Frightful sounds from within. Chauf. comes out profanely.

Note—There isn't much more to tell except that the stranger had gone out of the back door of the hotel to parts unknown.



HE NEVER CAME OUT OF THE HOTEL, AS FAR AS THE CHAUFFEUR KNEW

The chauf. tooled to Boston, hunted up Fred S. Smith, Boston agent of the Auto Car Company and told his dismal tale. Smith freighted the taxicab and the chauf. back to New York. Smith is in New York himself to-day, looking for any trace of the stranger who was sweller dressed than Charlie Dillingham or J. Rufus Wallingford.

STUDENTS OF TECH MIMIC PROFESSORS

Four pretty girl students and their 100 male companions roused numerously, the half dozen professors were attended the banquet of the Technology Chemical Society in the Tech Union on Friday night last evening.

The professors had been invited as they thought to be the guests of honor, but when they arrived they found that the students had taken the affair into their own hands and turned the tables on these dignitaries, who were ushered to a side table where they sat beneath a huge sign bearing the words, "Kiddish Laboratory." The menu cards bore the admonition that the guests were to do all they could to make it entertaining for the kids.

The students came to the dinner attired in their long canvas laboratory coats, a prize being offered for the most disreputable looking garment. The soup course was served in evaporating dishes and sucked through long glass pipettes. Assaying dishes were used for butter, and the liquids were drunk from beakers or long litmus test tubes. The toastmaster and speakers were students impersonating the professors who acted out.

The cast was as follows: Toastmaster, Dr. Henry P. Talbot, alias Dr. Henry P. Talbot, head of the department of chemistry. Dudley Clapp '10, raw materials, Dr. Willing H. Fisher, alias Dr. William H. Walker, R. W. Landy '10, ring systems and accurate formulae, Dr. Samuel P. Bullken, alias Dr. S. P. Mulliken, E. K. Jenkins '10, super laundry, Dr. Filoma Al. Thorp, alias Dr. F. H. Thorp, B. S. Rockwell '10, gas, Dr. Dogue Ex Al. Hill, alias Dr. Augustus H. Gill, L. W. Waters '10, Dr. Miles standpat Peck, alias Dr. Miles S. Sherrill, H. E. Stimp '10, Dr. Fanny J. Mone, alias F. J. Moore, L. C. Shaw '10, Dr. Amanda Author Nose, alias Dr. A. A. Noyes, H. E. Greenbelter '10, the institution which drew especial applause was that of Dr. Augustus H. Gill, the expert who testified on handwriting in the Rhoads case.

Following the dinner the professors all shook hands with their imitators to show that there were no ill feeling.

CARPENTERS ASK RAISE FOR JUNE

Five thousand carpenters in Greater Boston to-day are recorded as being unanimously in favor of demanding higher wages on June 1, following the Carpenters' District Council tabulation of the referendum vote taken on the question by their various local unions. The new wage scale adopted to go into effect on that date calls for a raise for house carpenters from 47½ to 50 cents an hour, and from 42 to 45 cents an hour for shop and mill men. The men now work a forty-four-hour week, and no change is asked for as to hours.

SUDDEN DEATH OF JOHN W. ALBAUGH, JR.

BALTIMORE, April 8.—John W. Albaugh, Jr., actor and part owner of Albaugh's Theatre here, died to-night in the Johns Hopkins Infirmary, after an acute attack of Bright's disease. Mr. Albaugh was a son of the late John W. Albaugh, a famous actor, from whom he inherited his talent. His wife is well known on the stage as Olive May.

ELMORE ARGUMENT ENDS GLOVER CASE

case where Mr. Blackmore is in danger? Isn't it exactly the kind of story that a man would put up who would come into court to falsify his testimony?

"It is a fact that the things that Blackmore testified to are immaterial. Even the way that Mr. Blackmore was found as a witness is suspicious. He told Your Honor that he had never known Larry Smith until he met him in New York at Shanley's while in company with Counsellor E. P. Barry and yet in the next breath that up on their first or second conversation he was calling Mr. Smith fraudulently by the name of Larry.

"He Knew Larry Smith."

"Is it reasonable to suppose that he would have done that if he had not known Mr. Smith before that time? I say that this witness has known Larry Smith for years. The only wise thing which the lawyers for the other side have done in this case has been to withhold Mr. Blackmore entirely from the stand. Think of the last witnesses. If I only knew at the time I was cross-examining him, what I know today of the record and character of Mr. Blackmore.

Attorneys Gove and MacFarland jumped to their feet at this point, objecting to the last statement of Elmore.

"Is there any propriety in his last statement?" asked Mr. Gove. "I submit that what he has just said is entirely improper. If he wished to offer evidence to show what Mr. Blackmore's character was, he had the opportunity to do so, but did not take advantage of it. This statement which he now makes is in the form of testimony."

Judge McIntire said nothing and Elmore continued:

"I regret that the wisest and cleverest thing done by my brothers was to withhold the witness Blackmore and spring him in the last minute.

"We had a right to do that, didn't we?" interjected Mr. Gove at this point.

Elmore Compliments Opponents.

"Yes, and I compliment you on doing it in the way you did," continued Elmore. "It was the cleverest piece of work in this case. The testimony of Detective Blackmore was deliberate perjury. No such thing ever happened as what he states. Clarence F. Glover's second, retired Waltham business man, never in this wide, wide world came to Arthur Glover's office, denied charges and pleas in the house hold of Arthur Glover as Mr. Blackmore says he swears to him.

"Would you call a perfectly normal and proper thing, Didn't I dispose of the property left by Clarence F. Glover, desired his property to go? He said that Seymour was the only one of his brothers for whom he had any use. He said he had no use for his other brothers and wanted them excluded from sharing in his estate, and wasn't his attitude a proper one?

"During the lapse of time before death not one of my other brothers called at my house and Clarence never called unless during the time Seymour and I were in good position to go to Waltham and work in Glover's shop. Seymour and I often went on hunting and fishing trips he took Seymour on his big and paid all expenses.

"And even at the time of his death Clarence had a fine of Dun and Company with Seymour. They had planned to go to New Brunswick Friday or Saturday following. Did Clarence ever invite or take any of his other brothers on these trips? No.

"Clarence also had a trip planned to Chilhetch, Fla., which he was going alone to take his wife to California after he got back from New Brunswick. Seymour was also planned to have much undue influence? He would be the Dun and Company to Seymour and Seymour's son-in-law, Mr. Walker. He told them it would be cheaper by his own share and more also, for it was paid for itself. That indicates how he looked upon Seymour. Never did a brother Clarence with his whole heart."

Seymour Glover in Tears.

At this point Seymour, who sat to one side of Mr. Elmore, began crying.

"When Clarence F. Glover was dying and realizing that he was about to meet his Maker face to face, he started for those who slew him, and yet his brothers, William, Arthur, Norman and Albert, were the first to put the lie on their dead brother's dying statement. Clarence F. Glover stated who did it, and Seymour was expected by those unworthy brothers to be the first to put the lie on their dead brother's dying statement. Their action toward Seymour immediately after Clarence's death was heartless and cruel, and none except brothers with the record that these brothers have would have done as they did.

"Let us consider the relations of Clarence with his brothers. Take the case of Albert, the man who instituted these proceedings. I defy anybody, from the arguments of opposing counsel, to determine exactly who Albert is. Attorney Scott did not mention him in his argument. Is there a hidden reason for it? Albert was a blackmailer, a crook and a degenerate, according to Clarence Glover. He was all of that.

Attacks Albert's Record.

"I introduced a record of two convictions for larceny. I showed his marital experiences. After his first marriage he induced a Miss Parker to go to New York, where they were presumably married. When she knew that she was duped into his wife filed a petition for annulment in the Suffolk Court. Now, what did he do? He sought a complaint against his wife for misconduct with one Paige. He brought proceedings against Paige, and received $2,000. His petition was dismissed. Here was granted, that is the report on marriage and divorce when he been looking up the marriage of Clarence and Lillian Glover. From that one experience we must have been a wise man on such matters.

"He was arrested on an assault charge and dismissed from the Boston police force for an attack on a Greek prisoner. That is the man who says he has a claim on the bounty of Clarence F. Glover. That is the man who has been all through the game before.

"He entertained the idea that the facts surrounding the death of Clarence Glover were sufficient to warrant him in making another attempt to get something without working for it. An attempt similar to the one he had made in the case of Paige.

"William Had Swelled Head."

"We have evidence that Clarence refused to recognize him, that Clarence did not know where he lived and that Clarence, even, did not know he was married. It all shows that Clarence had no interest in Albert, the real confessing. The other brothers dropped in afterward. Will and Clarence think about William. He said Clarence F. Glover had a swelled head on it, think he was right, judging from William's appearance on the stand.

"He said that William had borrowed money from him and sold it back. He and Seymour says that Clarence told him that William went into bankruptcy by posing insolvent. Clarence refused further said that William appropriated the money contributed by the other brothers to pay their funeral expenses. Lastly, to show the kind of man that William is, he sent back the Christmas dinner that Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Glover sent to his family.

"Of course Arthur was much about Nogales. He says said that he was no good; that he was a drinking man and that he didn't have much to do. Did Arthur's wife and he add that Arthur was the cause of his losing that position which he had looked to Arthur's motherin-law.

"I have now told the story of the real Clarence F. Glover and the real reasons for the murder of Clarence F. Glover. I say that in regard for Seymour and his family and other dependents I will always be by and other dependents I will always be by his side. She was with him wherever they went. Is that the way that a man he loves and acts who is in mortal fear of being plugged at any moment? I don't thought he was in danger would he have taken her to the Maine woods and surrounded her with an arsenal of guns?"

Called Her "Mamma" and "Pet."

At this point Lawyer Elmore read a letter from Clarence Glover to his wife. It was a letter which he wrote on one of his hunting trips in Maine. In it Glover used the term "little pet" several times. He frequently called her "mamma" in the letter and once used the expression "Papa loves mamma."

"Is that the kind of a letter that a man would write who didn't love his wife and his pet?" is that the kind of a missive that a man would send who feared he would be plugged?

"Now I want to say a word about Mrs. Glover. She was born in West Acton and came here a young girl. She was put to hard labor in her early youth. She was without education, but she has made herself. She was always a hard worker. She taught herself the language of her husband. She was a good housewife to him. She labored hard for her home and did everything to make life pleasant for Clarence Glover.

"The predominant characteristic of that woman is kindliness. She's not cultured. She never had an opportunity. Her environment was such that she could not easily acquire cultured habits. She shared her property interests with him. If she were a grasping, designing wife, why wasn't she getting money from him all the time?

"Kind to Le Blanc Girls."

"What was the say of her act in bringing Hattie down here? Was there any other reason than a mere kindness? Was there any other motive than kindliness when she taught Hattie how to read and write? Why did Mrs. Glover make clothes for Hattie? Why did she send clothes to Hattie's brothers and sisters in West Acton? Why did she bring Hattie's sisters up here and try to get positions for them? Mr. Glover's daughter is a victim of things of their blindness. They won't open their eyes for a moment to the kindliness for Mrs. Glover.

"The letters which Mrs. Glover received from Hattie's mother and brothers and sisters show that they appreciate what she did for them. Yet my intelligent, their blind ignorance of human nature tried to supply a sordid motive as to what prompted Mrs. Glover to do these things for the poor family in West Acton. What degree of baseness would they not attribute to Mrs. Glover?

"They say that a wife planned to get this little girl to be the permanent caretaker of her child and that she arranged for that little girl to meet Glover in the Copley square for the sake of getting a hold upon her husband so that she could get the kind of will she wanted. If that is true, Your Honor, Lucretia Borgia has come to life a thousand times.

"Mrs. Glover upon learning of what occurred between Glover and Hattie engaged Mrs. Taylors. She also wrote to Hattie's mother, asking her to call for her. She knew that when Mrs. Glover planned to use Hattie so that she would have a right upon Glover to make a will in her favor. Didn't Mrs. Glover go to Boston lawyer in order to get a divorce from her husband because of that act?

"Mrs. Glover is surprised at all along the line. She put on extraordinary pressure upon her husband to get him to sign the paper to try and find somebody who would take Hattie. I would now like to try and convince you that Mrs. Sampson, the only relative of Hattie's in this country, with the exception of Mrs. Glover Who Mrs. Sampson is? Who is she, Mr.? Mrs. Sampson admitted on the stand that she believed that the home Glover was not a safe place for Hattie and her morals. And yet you heard Mrs. Sampson upon cross-examination who she didn't know Hattie and who Mr. Glover was to her own home, her answer was, 'I didn't want to take the bother.'

Calls Miss Glover Kind Hearted.

"Contrast that action with Mrs. Glover's action. Mrs. Glover asked Mrs. Sampson to take Hattie after the bathroom incident. Mrs. Sampson refused. Mrs. Glover said she would help pay Hattie's way home to West Acton and what did Mrs. Sampson say? 'Why don't you get rid of the girl upon the street?' Mrs. Glover said even I got that kind to do it.

"Eight months later, at night, came a sudden summons to Mrs. Glover that her husband was shot by this girl and that he lay dying at the hospital. How should a wife act under those circumstances? Mrs. Glover has told you that the first time that her husband had got just what he deserved, it would not be unexpected under the circumstances.

Mr. Scott interrupted at this point and said, "Your Honor, I object to that standard."

"My brothers make a great deal of Mr. Glover's statement. Will any one believe that does that all amount to? There is nothing to explain it or tell what he meant. It amounts to nothing so far as this case is concerned.

Mrs. Glover could not endure such a long cross-examination and of such wide range as she was subjected to unless she was supported by the truth. Mrs. Glover has been through examinations by the city and State police examinations of the inquest, and examinations by the District Attorney, and through all she has come forth leaving the conviction that she had no guilty part or any sort or degree in the killing of Mr. Glover.

"Is it conceivable that a woman capable of the plotting and scheming with which she is charged by her brothers would go through such toy's play as taking three notes from under her husband's plate and telling Irene Le Blanc that she had written them after translating them to the girl?

"The first thing I heard when I went to Waltham on the Sunday morning following Mr. Glover's death was his dying statement to which he signed the paper and shot him. I had known Mr. Glover for ten years, intimately. And had never known him to suggest or do a dishonest thing. I believed him to be truthful, and when I heard that dying statement I believed that statement was true. I believe it to-day.

Realized His Position.

When Hattie was found under the bed doesn't Your Honor suppose I knew the seriousness of the position in which I was placed? Didn't I have an interest in knowing the facts, and didn't I have the right to present my case before it was examined by the police? Was I to doubt the evidence of my own eyes and what I saw on her own hands. Was I to doubt what Hattie said? Was I to doubt the statement of an appointment at the laundry and what she said that there she was to go? Was I to doubt what she said about the light being turned low at Mr. Glover's home and that Mrs. Glover did not know that she was there? I have proved that Mrs. Glover did not know she was there. The police have proved once as we came down under the bed gave us the right to draw conclusions.

"When it was all over and Albert came to me with a supposed deed, to get square with Mrs. Glover, wouldn't I have been a fool then if I did not know what Albert was after; if I did not know what a will was up against and if I didn't prepare for what followed?

"When I began the case I little realized I was to find myself as I did. It was the real import of the specifications. I went into evidence already submitted to which Attorney Scott that I had no participation in. I went over only that part of the specifications, alleging undue influence, to all that the court can consider. The balance of the specifications are pure surpluses.

Question of Gun Sale.

"If Your Honor should find that there was undue influence of the kind and description set forth, no amount of evidence as to a plan to kill would either increase or diminish the weight of evidence. If Your Honor should find that the will was procured by undue influence, nothing which transpired afterward as to a plan to kill would affect it in any way. There is no evidence that Sebastian Coffee ever made the revolver; ever saw Mrs. Glover. There is no evidence that Coffee ever knew Mrs. Glover was shot and killed by a revolver answering to the description of the number of the weapon held by the Waltham police.

"I say to the court and to the world, that I am not willing that an innocent woman go up the altar of hatred and the blind recklessness of unworthy brothers. This will not be the sacrificial altar of Clarence Glover. It represents exactly and absolutely the reverse of what Seymour Glover will cannot be broken, cannot be discarded by testimony of evil. Hence and unworthy character as that which has been introduced in this case.

"I say that the contestants know that Mrs. Glover knew of Glover's will. I say that the contest has not been brought in good faith; that it was not made for the purpose of affecting justice, but that the contest is an inhuman conspiracy for the purpose of seeking vengeance upon a defenseless woman. I say that the will is Glover's own act, and that the instrument is the expression of its author's intent."

Judge McIntire then took all the evidence under advisement. He said he would notify counsel when he had rendered his decision.

The case began January 31. Over 200,000 words were taken in testimony.

AY ATTACKS . DR. PRITCHETT

SYRACUSE, N. Y., April 8.—In a communication to the Post-Standard Chancellor W. R. Day of Syracuse University scores H. S. Pritchett of the Carnegie Foundation for classing the university as sectarian, thus the framing of the foundation's letter, and therefore not entitled to share in the fund.

In the face of this narrow and sectarian exaction that I replied to a communication from Dr. Pritchett that our policy was not "to sell at any price, that there was not money enough in any man's will to buy from us such an object and such an attitude. Talk of 'sectarian colleges!' In close anything more narrow and impossible than the administration of the Carnegie pension fund on these terms pre-fixed by Dr. Pritchett? The Carnegie fund either is impossible to self-respecting universities and colleges."

Appendicitis

How to Avoid It and Escape a Surgical Operation, Told by One Who Knows.

Simple Method That Is Always Efficacious. Trial Package Free.

It has only been a few years since it was discovered that a surgical operation would cure appendicitis; in fact, it has been but a short time since the disease was discovered and named.

Whenever there is an inflamed condition of the appendix, caused by undigested faeces in the small cavity opening into the intestine, you then have appendicitis.

The older doctors used to call this inflammation of the bowels, and were puzzled to know the cause.

Even now, with all the knowledge we have of the disease, no medical man can tell you why we should have the appendix, why we find it where it is or what are its functions, if it has any.

The disease for which the operation was cure is usually caused by indigestion, and in many cases follows a fierce and indigestible meal.

Physicians have until recently recommended an operation, but now, as it is known that it is caused by indigestion, dyspepsia, a cure without the operation is assured.

Where the patient is treated with Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets, the unhealthy conditions prevailing rapidly disappear, the stomach and intestines are placed back in their normal condition, every organ of the body operates as it should, and the inflammation is reduced and the operation is avoided.

Conscientious physicians, who are looking after the best interests of their patients, will always keep a supply of Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets handy in their office, where in cases of sudden attacks of indigestion they can relieve the patient at once.

There is no record of a case of appendicitis where the stomach and bowels were in a healthy condition and properly digested the food from meal to meal.

No better advice can be given to any one who has attacks of indigestion, or who has been threatened with appendicitis, than to tell him to go to any drug store, pay 50 cents, and take home a package of Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets.

Whenever heartburn, gas in stomach or bowels, heart disease or stomach troubles, sour eructations, acidity or fermentation are present, act at once. Take a dose of the Tablets and get relief as soon as possible.

At all druggists—50 cents.

Send for your name and address to-day, and we will at once send you by mail a sample package free. Address F. A. Stuart Co., 150 Stuart Bldg., Marshall, Mich.

MAURETANIA'S ROUGH VOYAGE

NEW YORK, April 8.—A succession of storms were encountered by the giant liner Mauretania, which docked to-day. On the last leg of her voyage she ran into heavy gales of fog, accompanied by a driving storm of sleet and rain. The heavy gales which prevailed throughout the trip compelled most of the passengers to remain in their cabins.

The suite de luxe on the liner was occupied by the families of John S. Phipps, Henry Carnegie Phipps of Pittsburg and their guest, Mrs. Frederick Guest.

Another passenger was Anna Held's daughter, Liana Carrera. Helen Ziegfeld, who has been studying abroad. She is going to Boston to surprise her mother, who did not know of her sailing.

Ogden Mills, father of the Countess of Gerlach-Mrs. Grant, Jr., F. C. Solomon, who accompanied Colonel Roosevelt on a hunting trip, and D. B. Hannah, vice-president of the Canadian Northern Railway were other passengers.

CHARLES THORNDIKE, LAWYER, IS DEAD

Charles Thorndike, a well-known Boston lawyer, died to-day at his home at No. 482 Commonwealth avenue. He was seventy-six years old. He had been ill with pneumonia for the past week. Mr. Thorndike graduated from Harvard in the class of 1854. He was a member of the Somerset and Country Clubs. He leaves a widow and one son, Dr. Augustus Thorndike of Beacon street.

WIDE TOPIC RANGE AT REAL ESTATE FEAST

The topics discussed at the speeches at the twentieth annual dinner of the Real Estate and Auction Board ranged from the tariff to socialism, with many merry tales interpolated. Toastmaster Joseph B. Rea had a jolly party to preside over, and the banqueters stayed until the last speech had been finished in the morning. The speakers were Allan Robinson, president of the Allied Real Estate Interests of New York; Patrick F. Murphy of Boston and New York, A. Piatt Andrew and Frederick H. Vlaun.

STUDY UP YOUR RECORD; CENSUS MAN IS COMING

Are you black, white, mulatto, Chinese, Japanese or Indian?

Are you single, married, widowed or divorced?

If any but single, how many children have you or have you had?

Give age at last birthday. (Women not exempt). If under two give it in fractions.

Can you speak English?

The census taker is going to have a lot bigger this year. Blanks are to be sent to your house, asking you to answer just about one hundred or more questions concerning the intimate details of your life.

If your landlady should rap at your door and ask you whether you were married, single or divorced, how much you earn, whether you can speak English and things similar, don't blame her. She has the right in the case. Uncle Sam has appointed her head of your family, and you must obey. Incidentally, some strange definitions of family have been introduced. Here are some of the new style families:

A group of men or men and women living under one roof, by a lodging house or hotel.

A man occupying a single room in a one-room dwelling.

The ordinary family, including the servant girl, and all help living in the house.

The lists will be sent out soon, and are intended to be filled out by the "head of the family" in order to save the census taker the trouble of chasing the person wanted for the information and to save the person wanted from the trouble of being chased.

BIG REALTY CROWD FOR NEW YORK TRIP

The trip of the Massachusetts Real Estate Exchange to New York is increasing in importance, owing to the large number who will attend the banquet on Friday. The feast will be held in the new large ball room of the Hotel Astor. Times Square, instead of in the Manhattan Hotel. Mayor Gaynor of New York will be a guest, as will officers and members of the real estate exchanges of Greater New York.

BURGLARS START FIRE TO AID WORK

NEW YORK, April 8.—Burglars, that they might rob two apartments in the confusion following, started a fire that caused fifteen families in the double apartment house at No. 598 Sutter avenue, Brooklyn, to flee to the street in their night clothes in a panic early to-day. The mob secured jewelry worth $300 in the apartment of Abraham Gordon, on the third floor of the building. Two other apartments showed evidences of having been entered while the confusion was at its height.

BURIED IN CAVEIN.

While digging a trench on Shawmut avenue, near Ruggles street, early to-day, Timothy Carney, seventy years old, of No. 79 Heath street, Roxbury, and employed by the city sewer department, was buried by a cave in. He was dug out by fellow workmen and taken to the City Hospital. He suffered a scalp wound and a fractured skull. He is on the dangerous list.

500 AMERICANS OFF FOR NICARAGUA WAR

NEW ORLEANS, April 8.—Five hundred Americans will, within a short time, be in Bluefields, organizing the native Army of General Estrada, the revolutionary leader, for a fresh attempt to wrest the Nicaraguan government from President Madriz. It was learned to-day, following the departure of General Victor Gordon on the steamer Marietta de Giorgio with war balloons and machine guns, that in the last month several hundred American recruits have been sent to Bluefields by roundabout routes. More are to leave within a day or two from Gulf ports.

ORDER HEARING ON BRIGHTON ABATTOIR

Mayor Fitzgerald has sent instructions to the Board of Health to arrange for a public hearing upon the Brighton abattoir controversy, and has ordered the board to limit to a period of two months the Butchers' Slaughtering & Melting Company's next permit for slaughtering.

"HIGH LIVING COST" RAISES POLICE PAY

Because of the "high cost of living" the Somerville Aldermen have voted increase the pay of the regular patrolmen from $3 to $3.15 a day, beginning July 1. The pay for the officers doing first and second year's work is increased ten cents a day. The pay of Chief Kendall was increased from $1,900 to $2,100 a year. Captain Perry received an increase of $75 a year, while the lieutenants' pay is increased $65 a year and the sergeants' $60 a year.

UP ONE FLIGHT OPEN EVENINGS

RUSSELL CASE IN HANDS OF JUDGE LAWTON TO-NIGHT

"I wonder why he (French) went West when he did. Perhaps it was to call on Fresno Dan. I submit that this man's (French) testimony is utterly unworthy of credit."

He assailed Mrs. Josephine Bennett of North Dakota as "a notorious character."

Like a flash, in the next moment, he was as highly complimentary to the wife of claimant No. 1 as he had been denunciatory of Mrs. Bennett.

He glorified "Mrs. Daniel Blake Russell" for her constancy. He called her a "noble woman."

He jabbed former Mayor Sydney Buttrick of Melrose with shafts of oratorical irony. Speaking of Buttrick's appearance on the stand as a witness for the respondent, Senator Simpson said:

"Pride showed in his face when given an opportunity to show himself—the title of 'Ex' is the most permanent and lasting one that can be conferred on a politician."

Russau Family Is Scored.

"Those witnesses from New York who took the stand against this claimant never saw him. They only identified certain photographs as those of James Russell, and before they took the witness stand the second time the only glance they got of the man who they claimed as their relative was through the glass windows of those living rooms.

"Of all that array that came here from northern New York, a woman who was a mother, a man who was a father, not one of them approached this claimant even to speak a word to him, their own son, as they said. Every opportunity was offered for them to see him and talk to him. Your Honor, the sole one of this band I refer to Mary Russau Anne, the daughter—the only one that did see him and talk to him, was she. She took the witness stand for a second time and stated that this man here was not her brother, James B. Russau.

"As against that tribe, guarded by paid detectives, there were nine witnesses who appeared from the same section of the country, and these nine witnesses declared that this man was not James B. Russau. Even a cousin of Russau's, Joseph, testified that this man was not his relative, Thomas LaPlant. Edward Kinney, a man of wealth and culture, both of these as well as that this claimant was not James B. Russau.

Witness Harshly Criticised.

Senator Simpson referred to Mrs. Josephine Bennett of North Dakota as a "notorious character." Then he added:

"This woman has testified that she was present and heard the claimant say that he was going to address some telegrams to his people in New York. Mr. Nathan in his argumentfailed to use the fact that Mrs. Russell, wife of the claimant, was present at the interview and had not been placed upon the stand to refute the testimony of Mrs. Bennett.

"Mrs. Russell, who has been here since the start of the trial and who is here today, is a magnificent tribute to the constancy of woman and to the iniquitous acts of the respondent. All the arrows of calumny, all the darts of slander, that have winged from false tongues have not been enough to drive that noble woman from her husband's side. I glory in her character, and I would scorn to since a decent woman on the stand to refute the testimony of a person like Mrs. Bennett."

Referring to ex-Mayor Sydney Buttrick of Melrose, who has testified against the claimant, Mr. Simpson said:

"The respondent seemed to be long on ex-Mayors, one of whom, burdened with apparent personal dignity, came here. Pride showed in his face when given the opportunity to exhibit himself. Now, Your Honor, I have had considerable experience in politics during my career, and I will say that the title of 'ex' is the most permanent and lasting title that can be conferred upon a politician. Ex-Mayor Buttrick resided that title many years ago, and he still has it. He admitted on the stand that he had been handling $10,000 of the fund left to a church, of which he is an attendant.

"He testified that once in his career he had a class of small boys in Sunday school. According to those who were forced to listen to him, he talked only of himself and his travels, that was all.

Another Rap at Upton.

"You remember a man named Conant and his sister. They were witnesses for the respondent. On the witness stand neither of them would swear that the claimant in this case was not Daniel Blake Russell.

"You recall the lady of ample proportions and abundance of speech, Georgia Small. Although she said she did not know Daniel Blake Russell, she made the assertion that this was not he.

"There have been other witnesses from Melrose who have said that this man was not Daniel Blake Russell, a woman named Yorke, another named Mulock and Mr. and Mrs. Axford. I have wondered and pondered why they, if they knew Daniel Blake Russell, and Daniel Blake Russell would not give the court the benefit of their wisdom when the respondent introduced their main case. But Eugene Upton knew that he would have to produce many things and he waited until the story of the claimant had been told. He had those witnesses on hand to prove anything he wanted to prove. Thats why the Mulock woman, the Yorke woman, and Mr. and Mrs. Axford were held in the case.

"There was a witness who was brought forward, a man whose boyhood was spent in Melrose, an associate of Daniel Blake Russell, a man with a wonderful idea of his own importance. A man who took a vacation when this case started and went to California. A man who, in April, 1909, had inside facts that no one else knew and that could only be commandeered to him by the lips of Eugene C. Upton.

"Testimony Not Worthy."

"This man was Edward W. French. He saw Professor Whitman in Chicago last Summer, and told him that this claimant was an impostor. French called at the Commonwealth Hotel to see this claimant, presumably in the interests of justice. The call was in the interests of Berry and Upton. I wonder why he went West when he did. Perhaps it was to call upon Fresno Dan. At any rate, while on his way, he told Professor Whitman he had inside facts. And even now he still carries on activity for the respondents in this case, and for some purpose he is placing his views before the public in one of the Boston papers at so much per line.

"Your Honor, I submit that this man's (French's) testimony is utterly unworthy of credit.

"They have presented a lady under the name of Bertha Yorke. In 1885, she was a young widow and fond of the society and the home of Daniel Russell. It is true that the claimant did not know Bertha Yorke in 1885 and she has stated that that was not her name at that time. This lady, who has husbands to burn, changed her name four times. This lady, the wife of a book agent named Avery, was the favorite one to ride in the Russell carriage. She could remember conversations of Daniel Blake Russell better than she could remember the names of former husbands. I say to your honor that her testimony is false and unworthy of belief and go into the discarded goes the book agent's wife.

Branded As Falsifier.

"Mary Mulock was seen by the claimant in April, 1909, and has been interested in this case from that time to the present. It was all the opportunity that she had to see the claimant. She has never spoken or even corresponded with this man to see if he were Daniel Blake Russell.

"James R. Axford, the man who met Ferdinand C. Almy in the dark of night, the man who met William C. Russell at night, Mr. Russell who was afraid to venture out of doors in the day time. Axford, their meeting an accident or was it by design? I brand that man as a deliberate falsifier and I brand the man as worse who prompted him to say the things which he has said and I could name the man. Never once did he utter a syllable to the claimant to ascertain whether he was Daniel Blake Russell or son.

"This man has a remarkable memory, the most remarkable memory that the world has ever seen, a memory that people would give a fortune to possess, but from the view of his head one could conclude that his brain could easily rattle in the bladder of a mosquito.

Simpson Hurls a Challenge.

Mr. Simpson paused for a moment at this point. His faced paled and he approached the table where sat Eugene C. Upton, Ferdinand C. Almy and William C. Russell, glaring at Mr. Upton and with his hand upraised Senator Simpson continued:

"In this case, Your Honor, there is something rotten somewhere. Either this man (pointing to the claimant), or Eugene C. Upton or Ferdinand C. Almy is the man. I challenge Your Honor by word to say that my client is the scoundrel. These charges are no hasty ones, they are not based on vague or inconsistent statements, but upon many years experience with honest men and testimony of the honest witnesses who have said that this man is not Daniel Blake Russell.

"Witnesses here have been paid from stolen funds for the purpose of covering themselves. I do not like to refer to the word 'steal,' but the two commandments remain to-day as they did in years gone by, and stealing is one of the words of those commandments. I am not going to mince my words when I have abundance of evidence to justify my statements."

At the conclusion of this noticeable outbreak over the court room, Later Attorneys Nason and Simpson went to the Judge's bench and Nason objected to certain statements made by Simpson in his argument which Nason said did not appear in evidence. Senator Simpson said that he did not think that was so. Nothing was given out by Judge Lawton, and adjournment was taken at this time, 12:30, until 2:30.

QUICK RELIEF OF ITCHING ECZEMA

Was Surprising—Inflammation Reduced in a Few Hours and Cure Soon Followed—Boy's Torture had Been Intense for Years—Friend's Child had Eczema, Too.

MOTHER TELLS HOW CUTICURA CURED BOTH

"When my boy was six years old, he suffered terribly with eczema. He could neither sit still nor lie quietly in bed for the itching was dreadful. He would irritate spots by scratching with his nails and that only made them worse. A doctor treated him and we tried almost everything, but the eczema seemed to spread. It started in a small place on the lower extremities and spread for two years until it very nearly covered the back part of his leg to the knee.

"Finally I got Cuticura Soap, Cuticura Ointment and Cuticura Pills and gave them according to directions. We used them in the morning and that evening, before I put my boy to bed, I used them again and the improvement even in those few hours was surprising, the inflammation seemed to be reduced. As I used two boxes of Cuticura Ointment, the same of the Pills and the Soap and my boy was cured. My son is now in his seventeenth year and he has never had a return of the eczema.

"I also cured a friend's child that had eczema on its face and limbs and in good time Cuticura cured her entirely. They acted on the child just as they did on my son and it has never returned. I would recommend this cure to anybody. Mrs. A. J. Cochran, 1824 Columbia Ave., Philadelphia, Pa., Oct. 29, 1909."

FOR SKIN HUMORS

Torturing, disfiguring patches of humor on the skin, scalp or hands are instantly relieved and speedily cured in the majority of cases, by warm baths with Cuticura Soap and gentle anointings of Cuticura Ointment. For eruptions, rashes, itchings, irritations, inflammations, dandruff, dry, thin and falling hair, for sanative, antiseptic cleansing and all purposes of the toilet, these pure, sweet, gentle emollients are unrivalled.

Cuticura Soap (25c.) to Cleanse the Skin, Cuticura Ointment (50c.) to Heal the Skin and Cuticura Pills (25c. per vial of 60) to Purify the Blood, are sold throughout the world. Potter Drug & Chem. Corp., Sole Props., 135 Columbus Ave., Boston.

CARNEGIE IN GOOD HEALTH

NEW YORK, April 8.—Alarming reports as to the condition of Andrew Carnegie's health were set at rest by the ironmaster today. Mr. Carnegie was in the best of spirits as he came downstairs to breakfast today, where he was seen by several newspaper men.

"Good morning, gentlemen," he said. "I feel just as well as I am feeling. I intend to take my daily walk in Central Park today, but I'm afraid it is a little cold for me. I am afraid I must postpone it."

He was later joined by Mrs. Carnegie and daughter, Margaret Carnegie.

CAUSE AND CURE OF SCIATICA

The Typical Case of a Massachusetts Woman Who Is Now Entirely Well.

"The proper medical treatment for sciatica, as well as for other nervous diseases, is to build up and purify the blood. The nerves receive all of their nourishment from the blood and remain strong and healthy unless the blood becomes impoverished or there is some injury to them. This is well illustrated in sciatica where the sciatic nerve becomes irritated and inflamed through a lack of nourishment because the blood has become impure, either from the grip, colds, malaria, overwork, or some weakening disease.

Dr. Williams' Pink Pills are the most direct cure for sciatica because they are a certain blood builder. As the blood becomes rich and pure, it carries an ever increasing amount of nourishment to the starved nerve thereby completely removing the cause of the disease and making a permanent cure.

Mrs. Eliza A. Snow, of No. 574 Hyde Park avenue, Roslindale, Mass., says:

"The cause of the sciatica in my case was taking cold while I was in a run-down condition. At first the attack resembled lumbago, starting in the muscles of my back, but later it settled in my right leg. For eight months I was just able to hobble around with the help of a cane. I was in bed for a part of the time. My entire right side was crippled and the pains were dreadful. They would shoot through me like needles. All the joints of my right leg were effected and I could not bear to put my weight on it.

"My doctor did not help me. I seemed to get worse all of the time. After I had been suffering for a year my husband told me one day to quit using liniments and get something for my blood. He had read about Dr. Williams' Pink Pills and urged me to try them. I took them as directed and could step on my foot when I had taken only a few boxes. I continued and was able to walk again without the aid of a cane. They made a perfect cure and I am able to work every day."

If you are suffering from sciatica or any nervous disease send for our free booklet on "Nervous Disorders."

Dr. Williams' Pink Pills are sold by all druggists, or will be sent, postpaid, on receipt of price, 50 cents per box; six boxes for $2.50, by the Dr. Williams Medicine Company, Schenectady, N. Y.

$25 IN PRIZES IN "TEN BEST NOVELS" CONTEST! WHAT ARE YOUR IDEAS?

HAVE you joined the thousands of BOSTON AMERICAN readers who are discussing which are the ten greatest novels in the AMERICAN'S latest prize contest?

Here is the proposition:

WHICH ARE THE TEN BEST AND GREATEST NOVELS?

The idea is not which are the most amusing, which are the so-called "best sellers," but which ten books convey in the form of an interesting story the greatest amount of useful information, and at the same time provoke in the reader the greatest amount of useful thought.

$25 in Prizes.

Send in your list of the ten greatest novels—the ten that do most to interest, to cheer the lives of those that read them, and at the same time convey useful information, and stir up useful, noble thought.

For the best list the American will give a prize of $10; for the next best a prize of $5, and for the next ten prizes of $1 each. The winning lists will be adjudged by a committee of Boston literary people.

MASKED BANDIT ADMITS SHOOTING A MOTORMAN

SPRINGFIELD, April 8.—A new confession by Bertram G. Spencer, the murderer of Martha B. Blackstone, and the man who terrorized this city for two years, has cleared up another shooting mystery which puzzled the police and added to the list of his heinous crimes.

He admits that it was he who held up and shot Motorman Michael J. Gilfoodey on Alden street, at the end of a car line. He fired a bullet into the carman's leg and made him give up all the money he had, which was only ninety-six cents.

His story of the crime is astounding. "I held up the motorman," he said, "and demanded money. He refused and told me to go to h——. I fired and the bullet hit him in the leg.

Changed Clothes, Aided Victim.

"When he gave up the money I went back up the street a little way, changed my slouch hat for the derby I had left there, put on my coat again, and went to the car to help the man."

One of the distinctive things connected with that confession is that Gulhooley and Spencer later became fast friends. When Spencer was arrested for the series of robberies and the murder Gilhooley was among the loudest to protest against "the outrage."

The confession to the Springfield police has cleared up Spencer's criminal past for two years. His amazing life from the age of nine, and including two attempts to kill his own father, is told to the AMERICAN by the prisoner's father, W. L. Spencer, a prosperous farmer of Johnson, Ct., where Bobby Spencer formerly lived in Boston, where he was employed by the International Harvester Company.

The story of the boy's crimes, two at least, sought to kill his father, a shooting scrape when he was only sixteen years old and attempt to kill the brother-in-law who had befriended him was told in the presence of the prisoner's mother, his sister, Mrs. Putz, and his father-in-law, H. J. Amberg.

Tried to Kill Father at Fourteen.

"The first time the boy tried to kill me was when he was fourteen years old," said the father. "He had run away from home in Lebanon and stayed away a week. He came home and crawled into bed before I had a chance to see him. When I learned that he was at home I went up to his room to remonstrate with him.

"I had no more than stuck my head through the door of his room when he pulled a revolver on me. He never said a word but leveled it at me and jumped for him and he pulled the trigger.

"The hammer of the revolver came down on my hand and my finger separated the hammer from the bullet. Here is the scar on my hand."

"Tell him about the time he tried to beat you down with a shovel," said the gray-haired old mother of the prisoner. "We might as well tell it all and get out. It will have to come out at the trial."

"The father took up the story again. "It was about six years after this shooting episode that he came back to visit us. He had been out in California and lived with his cousin, my wife's niece. When he came to the farm I had two men working there. Bert stopped to talk to them. He was an interesting talker and took almost half an hour of the men's time.

Attacked Parent With Shovel.

"I went over to him quietly and said, 'Bert, won't you come away and let the men work?' He walked away and I went my way to sort some potatoes behind a tree.

"It was not five minutes from that time that I heard some one approaching me stealthily, and when I looked up there was Bert. He had a big shovel in his hand and then he shouted:

"'I've got a d—— good mind to knock your brains out!' He swung the shovel at me and I ducked and got away. I did not dare go into the house all the rest of his stay with us. He was muttering to himself and crying. Finally I got the sheriff to quiet him and sent him away again."

"You omitted the time we sent him away to the navy," said the mother.

Again the father took up the narrative.

"This happened when he was sixteen years old. He was walking down the street in Lebanon behind a young fellow and his girl. The fellow thought her was trying to flirt with the girl and turned around and asked him to stop. There was no further argument. Bert pulled out a revolver and shot at the man. He didn't succeed in doing him any harm and the fellow thrashed him badly.

"The story of this escapade, coming after so many others, leaked out and we sent him away to the navy.

"He also had trouble in the navy and we sent him to California."

Mrs. Spencer then said:

"My niece sent me letters time and again saying that she was going to leave the boy examined for insanity. He caused all kinds of trouble. But he was so nice to her after his bursts of temper and so repentant that she would always change her mind.

"Tried to Shoot Engineer."

"Her husband was an engineer on the steamship Governor, which run along the Pacific coast. He took Bert on many trips with him and kept him at his house almost a year. One day, because of some trivial thing, Bert tried to shoot at him. They put him in irons and brought him back. After this he came East again."

Mrs. Spencer told of the insanity in the family on both sides. She said the boy's grandfather on his father's side died five years ago in the Middlesex County house from softening of the brain. His father died thirty-five years ago from softening of the brain. There have been other instances of insanity, she said.

Though the Spencers lived in Boston for some time, Bertram did not live there as a member of the family. His trouble with his father prevented him from becoming a regular object in his father's house, but he visited there frequently.

Storekeepers in the neighborhood of the Ashmont street house readily recognized Spencer from the photographs published in the AMERICAN. John R. Wood, a banker of No. 770 Washington street, Dorchester, is the young Spencer well.

"As soon as I saw the photograph in the AMERICAN," said Mr. Wood, "I knew that this young man was the young man who came to my shop regularly. He was quiet and never talked about his work or his affairs."

While Spencer was living on Ashmont street a mysterious affair took place in the home of John F. Mullaley at No. 6 Ocean street, only a few doors away from the Spencer house. While Mr. and Mrs. Mullaley were at dinner a masked man with a revolver in his hand came into the room. When he saw the two people he backed out and escaped from the house. The mystery of the masked burglar was never cleared.

Spencer has a brother and sister living in Boston.

EVENING DRESS RULE KILLS OPERA CAFE

NEW YORK, April 8.—The Cafe de l'Opera, at Broadway and Forty-second street, closed its doors to-day to stay closed indefinitely. Its 150 employes died out in small groups on the side-walk without their last week's pay. Lack of patronage, it was explained, was due to a rule requiring all patrons to be in evening dress.

SCHOOL DANGERS

The strain upon young children during school hours is severe, and parents should have a care that the little ones are strong enough to withstand this strain. Every child should be well nourished and the organs made to work naturally, otherwise permanently injured health will result.

The best body builder for children is Father John's Medicine, because it is a food medicine, containing the ingredients that make blood and tissue and strength. It is pure and guaranteed not to contain either alcohol or poisonous drugs. Father John's Medicine has built up the strength of thousands of children during its history of more than 50 years.

Dyspepsia and Nervousness

MRS. FRANCES HOUCK.

Entirely cured by Duffy's Pure Malt Whiskey after other medicines did her no good. Now Mrs. Houck recommends it to all her friends. She recently wrote:—

"Duffy's Pure Malt Whiskey has done me so much good I intend to always keep it on hand. About two years ago when I was feeling all run down I consulted a physician. He pronounced my trouble a species of dyspepsia and nervousness. I had taken two bottles of other medicine and they had not helped me, when a friend recommended Duffy's Pure Malt Whiskey. I am pleased to say that it has cured me entirely, and I do not hesitate to give it my indorsement. I shall recommend Duffy's Pure Malt Whiskey to all my friends."—Mrs. Frances Houck, 423 E. Water St., Milwaukee, Wis.

Ministers of the gospel, doctors of medicine, nurses and people everywhere unite in commending Duffy's Pure Malt Whiskey, a perfect tonic stimulant, the one true medicinal whiskey.

Duffy's Pure Malt Whiskey

Up to the present time we have never been able to get a large enough supply to enable us to advertise them.

Manila Cigars are a novelty in this country. Experts claim the Philippine soil will produce as good tobacco leaf as is grown in Havana.

Prices range from 7 for 25c to 3 for 25c. A Havana cigar of the same size and workmanship would cost you, duty paid, at least three times as much, but the largest cost would be the duty on them, and these cigars were taken in Duty Free; that explains the price.

From 7 for 25c to 3 for 25c.

We call your attention particularly to the Philippine Government Stamp appearing on each box.

GENERAL KITCHENER LEAVES FOR EAST

SAN FRANCISCO, April 8.—Field Marshal Lord Kitchener of the British army, who arrived yesterday from Australia, en route to London, and was a guest last night at a banquet given in honor of Rear Admiral Schree, retired, leaves to-night for the Yosemite valley and the East.

Governor Gillette in introducing Field Marshal Lord Kitchener proclaimed him "the greatest General of any army in the world."

'DON'T BURDEN BUSINESS MEN BY UNJUST TAX'

Attorney Edward F. McClennen, for the Boston Chamber of Commerce, made the last address to-day before the committee on taxation in favor of the proposed constitutional amendment to permit the classification of property for taxation. He said:

"The supporters of the resolve passed by the last Legislature for the submission of this amendment to popular vote include the Chamber of Commerce, the manufacturers and merchants committee on tax laws, the State Board of Trade, the committees on forestry, numerous boards of trade, large individual real estate owners, many individual manufacturers and merchants who have appeared before this committee and over 450 manufacturers who have expressed approval by written vote.

"It appears that in the States at least fourteen, where classification is permissible, not a single one requires in terms that taxation within the class shall be 'proportional.' Some of these constitutions require that taxation within a given class shall be 'uniform.'

"The charge made against the breadth of the amendment disregards the fact that taxation will still have to be 'equal.' This conclusion is established by reference to repeated statements of our Supreme Court in construing the provisions permitting the Legislature to impose excise taxes. The clause permitting excise taxes provides that they must be reasonable. The clause permitting general taxation, if amended as now sought, will still provide expressly that taxation must be 'reasonable.'

"There appears to be unanimity of opinion that forest taxation should be changed. The difference is on whether it can be done in a satisfactory manner under the present constitution. No week of the Supreme Court is cited in support of the assertion that exemption and a tax on value would be constitutional.

"Manufacturing property in this State, our opponents concede, is paying higher rates than similar properties in other States. Shall we leave our tax laws so arranged as to impede our manufacturers in their competition with those of other States? The suggestion is thrown out that any relief would throw the burden upon the farms. It is estimated that the total valuation of farm lands, including forests, is somewhat under 3 per cent of the total valuation actually taxed in the Commonwealth.

"We should amend our laws so as to change the taxation upon different classes of property or else to insure the collection of a reasonable part of the taxes imposed by the present laws."

HUSBAND SUES HOPE BOOTH.

NEW YORK, April 8.—A suit for absolute divorce has been started by Rexald Wolf, a dramatic critic, against Mrs. Rexald Wolf who is known to the stage as Hope Booth. Maurice Meyer, her attorney, will ask Justice Blanchard in the Supreme Court to-day for alimony pending the trial of the action.

GENOA PLANS BIG WELCOME TO ROOSEVELT

GENOA, April 8.—Genoa will give Theodore Roosevelt a rousing reception in spite of his desire for quiet, while following with Mrs. Roosevelt the course of his honeymoon trip of twenty-three years ago, this city will be gaily decorated with the quaint carriage in which the Roosevelts are driving along the Riviera, swinging into the city to the jingle of bells on the horses to-morrow.

Preparations for the welcome were hurried to-day. The city officials, thereby flouting an impressive formalities, have planned an escort for Mr. and Mrs. Roosevelt. The police have taken extraordinary precautions also. Excitement over the approach of the former President is intense. The course of the Roosevelt carriage along the coast is followed on bulletins in crowds.

Although the distinguished travellers have been granted as far as possible the isolation they requested, it is impossible for them not to be recognized. Travellers who have not them on the route arriving here by train to-day, say both are apparently as happy as real honeymooners.

SUBURBS AT THE FRONT IN REAL ESTATE

Suburban properties were again to-day the leading feature of real estate sales, those disposed of in the city, including the estate at No. 21 Gainsborough street, near Huntington avenue, Back Bay, comprising a four-story brick house and 1,169 square feet of land, all taxed for $11,500, which has been sold by Flora E. Blaisdell to Jean L. Putnam. The land is rated for $2,900.

In the South End the frame house and 822 square feet of land at No. 18 Newland street, near West Dedham street, have been purchased by John C. Tinsley from Catherine Hildreth. It is all assessed for $1,600, of which $800 is on the land.

The two three-story octagon front brick houses and 3,000 square feet of land on Newcomb and Bell streets, Roxbury, have been sold by Cecilia M. Gardner to Robert A. Taylor, for life payable through Patrick J. Gormley, this estate is taxed on a total valuation of $7,800, or $4,500 is on the land.

Julia P. Rooth has sold to James Barrett the frame house and 4,089 square feet of land at No. 21 Interval street, between Wapula street and Blue Hill avenue, Roxbury, all assessed for $2,600, of which $1,000 is on the land.

Another Roxbury property sold is that at No. 15 Madison street, near Shawmut avenue, comprising a frame house and 1,850 square feet of land, and all taxed for $2,500, which has been purchased by Vincent K. Gates from Mary C. Howes. The land is taxed for $1,900.

In Dorchester the frame dwelling and 4,320 square feet of land at No. 154 Ivaloo street, near Bowdoin street, have been sold by Mary E. Bailey to Annie Ballard for $2,600. The land is rated for $1,300.

Henry W. Gray reports to be sold for the heirs of J. B. Stoughton the property situated No. 58 Hesketh street, consisting of a lot containing 4,050 square feet and a two and one-half story frame dwelling house. The total assessed value is $3,800, of which $1,500 is on the land. The property is sold to Katy B. Goodridge, from whose wife it will pass the property and occupy.

Winslow B. Carter has sold, report says, for the frame house No. 10 Hesketh street, Roxbury, to Edith Weld Kinsley. The lot area is 5,749 square feet. The grantee is Julia P. Woodward and the price paid is $6,000. Mr. Kinsley also bought for occupancy. The terms were private.

Edward F. Perkins has sold for $6,642 the brick building, containing stores and flats, and 2,360 feet of land on Cattle road, at Atlantic, Quincy, to Edward L. Parker, of Neponset, Mass. This is a sale a few rods from the Metropolitan railroad and the Squantum and Wollaston Yacht Clubs.

Giant Bull Moose In Water Battle.

BASIN MILLS, Me., April 8.—With the Penobscot at freshet height, a big bull moose attempted to swim the river at this place but was swept over the dam by the swiftly rushing current. It was near the spot made famous by the "cyclone barn," built years ago by Maine's one time lumber king, John Goddard, that the most thrilling battle with the river ever seen on the Penobscot took place but the forest monarch won.

Long Waits Close $1,500,000 Restaurant.

NEW YORK, April 8.—Too much time between order and the dinner, the result of too much distance between the kitchen and the dining room, brought about an assignment of the Cafe de l'Opera, one of the finest places on Broadway, with liabilities of $600,000. The restaurant was opened last Fall at a cost of $1,500,000, with a chef at $50,000 a year and a manager at $100,000.

Derrick to Move Body of Fat Woman.

NEW YORK, April 8.—Louise Ambrodino, who had the distinction of weighing 13.4 pounds for every inch of her height, is dead. She was four feet four inches by four feet four inches and weighed 700 pounds. She was twenty-four years old and well known as a professional fat woman. A derrick will be used to lower the body from her apartment, as the stairway is too narrow for its passage.

Clocks Must be Right or Owners Are Fined.

WASHINGTON, April 8.—A bill has been introduced in Congress imposing a fine of $25 on owners of publicity exposed clocks that do not run or are more than two minutes off time in the District of Columbia. Congressmen claim to have been late at engagements because of faulty timepieces.

Child Only "Tickled" By Fall of Two Stories.

BURLINGTON, N. J., April 8.—Eleven-year-old Dorothy Fleming, while walking in her step here, fell from a second story window on her head. She was walking about with a scratch on her forehead when help reached her, and said the fall only "tickled a little."

Massive Rat in Hair Saved This Girl's Life.

SHENANDOAH, APRIL 8.—Wearing a massive "rat" in her hair saved Miss Emma Madden, seventeen, a "hello girl," from being killed when she hit the pavement after falling from a second-story window. She suffered concussion of the brain, but will recover.

RED SOX LOSING SIGHT OF LAYING DOWN BUNT HITS

JEFFRIES COVERS NINE MILES AT SUCH SPEED AS TO TIRE TRAINERS

By W. W. NAUGHTON.

JEFFRIES' TRAINING CAMP, ROWARDENNAN, Col., April 8.—Jim Jeffries has sampled the roads lying around Rowardennan and is well pleased with them. The big fellow was up at 5 o'clock this morning to engage in his first trudge over the rolling highway. He had for his companions his nephews, Boyer and Kistler, and Farmer Burns.

The party covered nine miles in all, Boulder Creek being the turning point. On the way back Jeffries jogged and sprinted. At times he covered a full mile on the run. He went for several sprints and altogether ran about two miles.

Jeffries and his companions were back in camp in about three hours and while some of the bunch looked bedraggled, Jeff was comparatively fresh. Speaking of his first road work Jim said:

"The going suited me and I sprinted, and sprinted. It was a good test for my wind and I am thrilled to death to find that it is in good shape. I could not wish it to be better than it is right now."

While Jeff dug out hard on all sides he was reeking with perspiration and those who were up to see him could not be deceived if he intended to go in for road work every morning. Jeffries, when asked in regard to his program said:

"Why I have no reason to vary much. I would have enjoyed something much easier than I did if the other fellows had shown any weakness, but I have set a fast pace and gone a few miles farther."

There are some fighters who would find themselves very stale at the end of training of they started out on a twelve weeks' spell of perspiration the way Jeff is doing. He is such a strong-framed fellow, however, that disappointing disaster for Jeff is the last thing that would affect his mind. No matter may not hurt him in the ring.

Jeff Loves to Exercise.

He seems to love all forms of exercising, and it is his favorite argument that what agrees with a man cannot injure him. To the ordinary observer who has not seen the average length of a pugilist's training there would seem to be danger to Jeff besting his fight on the road, as the big men say, but Jeff and those around him believe that he can stand the rigors of training as well as he stands the punishment from an opponent when it comes his way.

No matter what outsiders may think, some of Jeff's men entertain a suspicion that he is likely to overdo his vitality while preparing for Johnson.

After a bath, shower and brisk rub down Jeff took breakfast and then rested and loafed more than half an hour. He filled in the morning playing baseball with Dick Cleaves, Willie Jacobs, Sam Berger, Farmer Burns, Bob Armstrong and Ted Boyer and from the yells of delight that went up out of the redwood grove, where the diamond is located, the big man evidently enjoyed every minute of the exercise.

After lunch Jeff took a nap and then arrayed himself in gymnasium costume and was seen waiting for his sparring partners. With Sam Berger for an opponent, Jeff was snapped while delivering different styles of punches and then posed singly in fighting attitudes.

Jeff's Famous Crouch.

By request Jeff placed himself in the crouching position he assumed when fighting Fitzsimmons, the first time at Coney Island.

It is not likely, however, that Jeff will employ this style of fighting against Johnson. He has a great left to lead in baffling Fitzsimmons' famous solar plexus punch, and it would be a terrible disaster for Jeff to lead forward that way when Jackson stepped in with a counter.

When through with the photographers Jeffries had snapped him. Jeff played handball with all his might and main in rotation. The first he tackled was Sam Berger, and was he a sore mark when he got done. Berger took him out in a game which stood 21-20 at the finish. To show that he did not consider that result a proper exposition of his relative capabilities, Jeff offered to give Berger 10 points a week, betwen and allow him the intervening time to train.

Jeffries advised up to his work after the setback with Berger and outplayed all the other members of his staff.

The ring in which Jeff is to box daily arrived last night and will be put in position by Farmer Burns and Bob Armstrong tomorrow morning. Although Jeff may not know it, it is the identical ring which Jack Johnson used at his training quarters near Lonewylie when preparing for Al Kaufman.

Jeff is planning fishing and hunting excursions to vary the monotony of training and he will also take in points of interest in the neighborhood.

It is also the purpose to have Jeff visit the big city quite often, as Monday, when it is the intention to make use of the big redwood timber after the big fighter. When this is done former President Roosevelt, General Fremont, General Grant and the rest of them will have nothing on Jeff in the possession of a finer monument.

Besides Burns, George Fitzgerald and O'Connor.

BOSTON COLLEGE TO OPEN ITS SEASON

The Boston College baseball nine will open up its season to-morrow, when the team goes to Kingston, R. I., and meets the Rhode Island State College. The Boston team, which has been rounded into shape during the last week by Coach John Mitchell, is one of the best teams the college has had in years.

Ted Boyer will be pitched by Harrington, who was one of the box artists last year. Eddy Barry, Jack Burke, Milbury, who caught for the Boston college High school nine years ago, will open up the game as backstop, and Ryan from Somerville, who is considered as a find will be used for the first time in the box. Dunbar has come down from Holy Cross this year and Harrington will hold down the initial sack, Donahue will play second and Fitzgerald, Lowe or Billy Burke will play short. The man picked to cover third will not be announced until just before the game. The outfielders will be taken from the following men: Bill Murphy, Ted Boyer and Ted Lowe.

M'KAY MAY FACE THE SPEED BOYS

Big Bob McKay, the Harvard football tackle, may be one of the pitchers the Crimson will use against the Red Sox next Tuesday at the opening game. McKay has just taken his spring dose of examinations and the Harvard College officials are now holding a post mortem on the momentous blue books. College lessons have always kept McKay in the background in the baseball season, but Christy Mathewson, when he was coaching the team last Spring, gave a great deal of attention to Hicks and the performances of the giant seemed to pledge the big league leader.

At present Hicks is the only sound pitcher on the Crimson nine of proper caliber to face the Red Sox, and Harvard sorely needs McKay to back up Hicks' hoho box star.

LOCAL POOL SHARPS CAN'T STOP WESTON

"Cooley" Weston won both his pool matches yesterday, defeating Amulsky, 125 to 75, and beating Harrison, 125 to 86, at the White Bear billiard rooms. The games to-day will have Patsey Flynn in the afternoon match and Freeman of Dorchester at night.

AUTOISTS WANT PARK ROADS LEFT OPEN

By J. C. KERRISON.

Mayor Fitzgerald's desire that all the roadways under the control of the Boston Park Commissioners be closed to motor travel during the coming season, and his letter on the same subject to the members of the Metropolitan Park Commission have raised quite a little storm in motor circles. Many persons in fairness to considerable discussion pro and con during the past few weeks. There are comparatively few motorists who believe that the desire of the Mayor will be gratified. Some of these park roads are what might properly be termed main roads, leading from town to town, and as such, neither the orders of Mayor Fitzgerald or of the two park commissions would have any avail, for the law unfortunately provides that connecting roads shall not be closed to motor travel.

The request of the Mayor of Boston was forwarded during the hearing on all his measures to devote 25 per cent of the appropriation for the Boston and Metropolitan Park Commissioners respectively, and that he was seriously considering such action as he has just taken.

Reason for Action.

While the Boston Park Commission may do that which Mayor Fitzgerald desires, it does not necessarily follow that the Metropolitan Park Commission will do likewise. No one is to believe that any such laws or regulations imposed by the commissioners would receive favor. The one great power in the State is the Massachusetts Highway Commission which, under the law, may prevent or reject all road regulations not conformatory to those on the statute book.

The reason for this action on the part of the Mayor is owing entirely to the fact that the city of Boston receives no appropriation for the care of main-range of the roads out of the big sum of money paid in registration fees by the motorists. It is pointed out that in 1911 Hall thin fee-ton has $5 per cent, of all the automobiles registered in the State, which at the present time number 26,000 and has not an inch of State road. Boston certainly receives pennies from its automobiles. Boston has but forty-five miles of park roads and not an inch of State roads. There are something like 2000 miles of road in the Metropolitan parkways. These roads are maintained entirely by the State, the 240 miles of State highway. In the Metropolitan park system there are approximately twenty-five miles of roads that were built by the State and which are maintained by the State, at an appropriation of $80,000 being made therefor.

SHEAN MAY LEAD DOVES.

No captain has been appointed for the Red Sox nine, but Lobert is the present acting leader. Fred Lake also has appointed to one to lead the Doves on the field. Shean later may be the man.

BARBOUR, RICH NEW YORK BOY, WILL BOX HERE

Among the entries received by the B. A. A. for the national amateur boxing championships meet at Mechanics Building next Monday and Tuesday is William W. Barbour, son of the millionaire as phalt king of New York.

He is in the heavyweight class and will be seconded by no less than the ex-world's champion, Jim Corbett, who recently had the following to say of his protege:

Incidentally, I think I have uncovered a new heavyweight champion, one possessed of such wealth and prospects, however, that he probably will never be obliged, unfortunately for the benefit of the sport to enter the squared circle as a fighter, but will nevertheless soon be heard from in the amateur ranks, and, after all, it's the amateur interest that forms the basis of support for all sport.

"Barbour is the son of Wm. I. Speer. When he boxed at Cooper's Gymnasium in New York a few weeks ago with Jeff Clark, the champion caught one of Barbour's slingers squarely on the chin, and it sounded like a shot. But he's clever and can hit some.

"Barbour has been auxious for some time to get a private bout with Anthony Ivergel Biddle, the Philadelphia society man who is a pupil of "Philadelphia Jack" O'Brien, but after looking Barbour over O'Brien decided that his pupil wasn't looking for such hard game.

"I shall be in Boston next week with Barbour for the A. A. A. bouts, and am trying to get him to visit Chicago to meet George Lytton. I wish the Illinois A. C. would help me in the matter. Barbour has taken up boxing merely as a recreation. I wish 'twas different, for he has the making of a great battle career."

TRAIN WRECKED DOVES IN GAME AT LOUISVILLE

By W. H. ROSS.

LOUISVILLE, Ky., April 8.—After the smashup at Saxton, in which the whole party escaped injury, the rattled Boston ballplayers to Louisville as soon as they could, but the baggage could not be handled as quickly as the fortune and was left behind. The Doves all felt they had had a close call and several others was deepened when they heard here and learned that the Louisville team was also under bereavement.

The father of President William Grayson of the local club passed to the realms beyond early yesterday.

Players Still Shaky.

Most of the Doves still complain of soreness in the muscles of the spinal columns or of lame shoulders or something kindred. But what is more depressing than any slight ailment just about now is a realization that the boys have of being close to the limit, after only playing in one game at Saxton and the environment in Louisville is decidedly left that a benefit once beyond human ken had guarded the Boston National Baseball Club and all other passengers on ill-fated L. & N. train No. 29 when it crashed into a glowing mountain tunnel near the border of Tennessee and Kentucky at 3 o'clock this and ran into a freight train in the mist of a dark and gloomy night.

Dr. Bill Rodgers put some stitches in the wounded lineman's scalp and face. He would not say exactly about what had happened. "Bill said," he told Dr. Martel, "that he was all right, but I can't remember. I don't know whether I jumped or what happened. Where is Bill? I want to see Bill. Bill had her wide open when we came through the tunnel and then I was going to kill. I was pulling in the coal. We was making a time that would get home to her and the kid. Say, Mistah, where is Bill?" All that was quieted of Engineer Bill Rodgers was then lying on the floor of the mail car shrouded with empty sacks, and he hadn't stayed by to fall on the air brakes what would have happened isn't pleasant to think about.

Baby Nearly Killed.

One of the hands in the baggage car was stricken with hysterics. One of the mail clerks nearly fainted and put upon his mouthpiece girl-infant of the Doves, was Martel, first examination of the infant was told that a child needed medical attention and he found Jennie and handed her over to the baby's relief. He found her bleed in the face, nearly scalped. The baby's heart had almost stopped beating and the mother was frantic. Jennie got the baby and child left the train at Corbin and the Doves will never see another the little one lived or died. If she lives it will be due to the prompt services of the Boston girl.

The Doves were in no condition to have played ball here yesterday, and could not be expected to be at their best for several days to come. The field is in condition but has nerves at high tension. Heroic and Cobb, who are selected to be the box men clubs, and when and where they will take it over which Manager Lake has not yet learned from Manager Mc-Graw of the New York team, who swept and then for Beals Becker. The Doves will have Louisville to-night to play by Louisville, O., to-morrow.

VETERAN THRESHIE WINS.

In the three-cushion billiard carom tourney at the Imperial rooms last night Jerald Jones, 50 to 42. To-night Jones and Jimmy Ryan meet in what will probably be the deciding game.

NEXT STOP FOR SPEED BOYS IS CINCINNATI

By A. H. C. MITCHELL.

NASHVILLE, Tenn., April 8.—The Red Sox leave to-night for Cincinnati, where two games are scheduled for to-morrow and Sunday. Then on to Boston for all hands.

Pat Donahue, who has been of absolutely no use to the club thus far because he was slow in getting into shape, has been shoved further in the background by a painful injury to practice. A foul tip tore off part of the nail of the middle finger of his right hand.

Dr. Green patched up the digit, but Pat will not be able to handle the ball for several days. Hugh Bradley, however, is a very handy man to have around, and he can give the pitchers plenty of warming up practice.

Pat is the only man on the Red Sox injured list. The club has been remarkably free from injuries this trip and thus far has passed through the training period in grand shape.

Cicotte is absolutely ready for the big ball, and it would not be surprising if Donahey picked him to go against the New Yorks on the opening day.

Our boys have been slugging the ball so well that they have lost sight of one of the most important parts of the game, bunting. Donovan has given them no practice on this trip and as a result they are very poor in laying the ball down in front of the plate. No player seems to possess the knack but each man should be made to do so.

In the old days the great Baltimore team began its batting practice with bunting. Everyone remembers how they won many and many a game through their ability to lay the ball down. Many of our boys are good hitters, and, like everything else, one needs to practice continually.

Bill Carrigan, Nashville there were several pitiable attempts by the Red Sox to bunt and Higgy Hooper was the only one to pull one off successfully. With such a lack of practice now in laying the ball it pity they are not more skilful on the days to practice in the art. There was some bad baseball played in the game when Cicotte and McConnell led off with hits and Lord walking no attempt to sacrifice was tried to drive them in with a heavy hit. His effort, hitting the first ball pitched, was a puny fly to the left fielder.

JACK FITZGERALD AND SULLIVAN IN FIGHT

Jack Fitzgerald, who clashes with Tim Sullivan of Newburyport in Brockton tonight, arrived in the Shoe town late last evening. Fitzgerald is in excellent condition for the bout at the Union Athletic club.

Before leaving for Brockton, Fitzgerald said that he did not underestimate Sullivan in any way. "This fellow must be a good one to stand Jack Dillon and Eddie Burke in New York recently at only seventy-four pounds, ringside, and gave the Sailor an awful licking for five rounds.

"A fight is a fight and I will take no such liberties with a man of Burke's abilities in a ring. Sullivan is all right and I expect to win but I think that I will have the time of my life doing the job."

The Bill Clerk Is Tipped Off About the Boss

By KENNETT HARRIS

"I'll tell you what his idea of a young man is," said the bill clerk. "He seems to me to be about as near a fool as any man I ever met. Children Have Their Season In Smart Set

By ELIZABETH ELLIOTT.

This is practically the children's season in society, and the future belles and beaux of the world of fashion who have been engrossed in study while their elders enjoyed the season just past, are now having their innings.

One of the most important events for this younger element is the party which Mrs. Stephen H. Bennett is giving this evening at her Commonwealth avenue home in honor of her second daughter, Miss Margaret Bennett and the young people of her own age.

This is also the night of Miss Ethel Amory's dance for William Prescott, a Groton school boy, the son of the Rev. and Mrs. George K. Prescott, but as it is a later affair it will be possible to go on to that from the Bennetts.

Mrs. Bennett's eldest daughter, Miss Elizabeth Bennett, is just about arriving in Europe, having sailed last Saturday from New York with her grandmother for her first foreign trip.

The skating carnival to be given at the Boston Arena the afternoon and evening of April 16th in aid of the Morgan Memorial will no doubt attract a large society gathering. It is to be a costume ice cornival and will be most amusing.

The carnival is under the patronage of the joint committee of Morgan Memorial, consisting of the Rev. Thomas Van Ness Everett of the Courtenay Guild, the Rev. Edward Cummings, the Rev. Dillon Brereton Mrs. A. G. Barber, Mrs. Charles H. Lincoln, E. S. Douglass, Dr. E. Peabody Gerry, C. H. J. Kimball and the Rev. E. J. Heinsz; also the executive committee of the Women's Municipal League, consisting of Mrs. T. J. Bowler, Mrs. S. L. Arnold, Mrs. H. P. Kidder, Mrs. Thomas Allen, Mrs. Henry Parkman, Mrs. S. B. Pearmain, Miss Rose Lamb, Mrs. B. B. Cheney and Mrs. R. W. Bradley.

The following named ladies will also act as patronesses: Mrs. Charles G. Ames, Mrs. John L. Bates, Mrs. Howard N. Brown, Mrs. Charles L. Bean, Mrs. Eben S. Draper, Mrs. R. S. Douglass, Mrs. Christopher R. Eliot, Mrs. Paul Revere Frothingham, Mrs. Reginald H. Fitz, Mrs. William P. Fowler, Mrs. Arthur Foote, Miss S. L. Gulld, Mrs. Charles P. Hemenway, Miss F. Boston, Brookline and Cambridge friends of Mrs. Lionel S. Marks (Josephine Preston Peabody) are interested in the large and extensively reception and luncheon which will have just been given in her honor in New York, on the eve, so to speak, of her departure for England where she will see her latest play, The Piper, performed on the fifth of next month.

Mrs. Marks sails this week with her own children, but will not be accompanied by Professor Marks, as his duties at Harvard will not permit of his leaving even for the presentation of the play.

Among the distinguished guests present at the luncheon were Charles Hanni Kerfoot, Miss Edith Wynne Matthison, Dr. Henry Van Dyke, Dr. R. L. Gould and Winthrop Ames.

Hals's "Portrait of a Woman," Which Was Sold for $137,000

Another high record for a single picture, sold at auction in this country, was made at the sale of the Verges pictures in Meadowside Hall, New York, when Franz Hals's "Portrait of a Woman" brought $137,000. The 9th-nine pictures sold realized $266,250, bringing the grand total of the sale up to $1,326,075.

Horace Is Dead; Famous Old Man of Young's Hotel

"Well done, thou good and faithful servant."

Horace is dead.

His full name, which few people know, was Horace Hemsley. To mention the name "Horace Hemsley" to the average Bostonian meant little. To speak of "Horace" would be known by many Bostonians to mean none other than the head waiter at Young's Hotel, who was for fifty years a distinctive feature of that hostelry.

Horace was that fast-disappearing product of old Southern days—a perfectly trained, tactful and courteous waiter. He doubtless knew as many Boston men as any person in the city. He was called "Horace" by all.

Horace died yesterday at the Massachusetts General Hospital, where he had been ill for three weeks with troubles arising from old age.

His exact age is unknown. Horace himself used to say that when he came to Boston in 1860 he was forty-five years old. That would make him eighty-five at the time of his death.

Maryland was Horace's birthplace. He was an indoor man, not a field hand. This marked the distinction between the ordinary colored laborer, who worked in the cotton fields, and the house servant, who was considered good enough to wait on the "massa" and "de missis" and other folks in the "big house."

Some years before the war Horace went to Baltimore and became a hotel waiter. Naturally, too, for Horace was an exceptional man, he rose to be head waiter. He was in the United States Hotel in Baltimore for seven years.

There he waited on the biggest men of that day. Henry Clay, Daniel Webster and Franklin Buchanan (a secret personage).

In these later days if one got Horace alone in a corner somewhere, and questioned him quietly and considerably, he would gradually talk about himself. He would relate stories of the former notables upon whom he waited in the South. He would tell how Horace Clay always sent word ahead that he was coming, how President Buchanan would eat in a private dining room, usually inviting the landlord to dine with him.

In 1857 Horace came North. He worked in Newport for three years, then came to Boston. He applied for work to George Young, founder of Young's Hotel. Young hired him on the spot. He didn't think that the soft-spoken man who came to the world say at Young's had ever been and become one of the most noted figures in the hotel.

For the past three years Horace's duties were made as light as possible for him. The management offered to pension him, but Horace would not listen to it. He came to the hotel every day and looked over the kitchen and dining room, considering himself that everything was as it should be.

Horace's principal station in the hotel was on the second floor, where the big banquet halls are located. He gave personal attention to the details of all banquets. In so doing he came in contact with members of about every organization, society and club of any importance in the city.

He had a rare memory toward guests. It was deferential without being servile, and yet never presumed on his long position in the house.

To host-supreme Horace was invaluable. Many a "prize" reporter, baffled by the ominous affiliations of meddling banquet committees, was helped out by Horace, who had a marvelous memory for names and faces and could always "reel off a list of 'among those present.'"

He could neither read nor write, but he could receive instructions about dinner menus, keep them in his mind and execute them not better than most men with pages of notes.

Outside of his personal work, Horace was a great asset to the house on account of his example to the other waiters. Even the freckle-faced "bell-hop" or messenger boy respected Horace and learned things from him.

On October 27, 1900, the Harvard Odontological Society gave him a gold watch and chain. He received scores of other tributes in personal gifts and big tips. The latter came particularly from banquet committees and hosts at private dinners, who knew and appreciated Horace's skillful handling of the service.

When General Grant was in Boston he was quartered at Young's. Once but Horace served him at the table. Grant, who had seen the old-time waiters in the South, remarked on Horace's attentive ways and complimented him, a tribute which was treasured in Horace's memory.

General Joe Wheeler, the Confederate veteran, was another man whose praise Horace extolled.

When ever Adelina Patti came to Boston she put up at Young's and always insisted that Horace should take charge of the service at her table.

The late Governor William E. Russell, whom Horace vastly admired, had a peculiar liking for the old head waiter. Governor Russell said once in the hotel lobby:

"Horace is the best waiter I ever saw."

Someone carried this remark to Horace and the latter chuckled to himself all the evening.

Mayor Fitzgerald, when told to-day that Horace was dead, said:

"He was a good man—a mighty good man. He had a wonderful memory for a person's individual tastes. And he knew an amazing number of people.

Thomas W. Lawson, the late Governor Greenhalge, former Governor Bates, former Governor Douglass, Governor Draper, former Speaker Bowditch, Lieutenant-Governor Frothingham—in fact, practically all the big men of the city and State for the last fifty years have been waited on by Horace.

His funeral will take place at his house, No. 25 Garden street, Sunday afternoon, at 2 o'clock services will be held at the First African Methodist Church on Charles street. Burial will be at Mt. Hope. He leaves a son, Alonzo Hemsley.

SCIENTIFIC BUST DEVELOPER

Science has at last discovered a treatment for a condition which has always been regarded as incurable—retarded development of the breasts. Every woman has the natural right to a beautiful form, but sad to say there are many who never get proper development and seem doomed to stay flat-chested and unattractive.

Sorum, the new treatment for lack of development, is for sale by Houghton & Dutton, and in every case where it has been tried has so proven its wonderful power to increase the bust measurements, that it is sold under a guarantee of success or money refunded. There is no massaging, no rubber appliances, no distressing smoking fumigations—only a simple scientific treatment. Get a three weeks' course for $1.00, on a guarantee offer from Houghton & Dutton, or we shall prepaid from the Sorum Extract Co., Buffalo, N. Y.

The Modern Girl and Her Good Health

By WINIFRED BLACK

SEVENTEEN girls of the University of Missouri went out to meet Weston, the walker, the other day, and walked sixteen miles with him before breakfast.

Just think what those girls' grandmothers would have said at the idea of a half mile walk either before or after breakfast!

We hear a whole lot about the plain, old-fashioned woman, and what a wonderful creature she was, but sometimes when I get to looking at the family album I wonder whether she was so wonderful, after all.

When I was a little girl all the middle-aged women I knew were invalids, or pretended to be.

I can remember almost fainting when I happened to be caught playing house in a corner behind the sofa one day and had to sit there and hear a group of my mother's visitors tell about their ailments. If I was quite a heroine I remember when somebody heard a doleful moan and rolled me out from my ambush, as white as a ghost, and for week to protest.

I think some of the estimable ladies present were a little jealous of the dear care of my constitution, too.

Nowadays a woman who talks hospital and operation and headache and invalid back might just as well lock herself up in a convent and be done with it. No body will listen to a word she says.

If Christian Science never does another thing for the world it has done this much: It has put the sickly, whining, delicate and glad-of-it woman out of fashion, and I'm willing to take off my hat to every practitioner in the country just for that one thing alone.

Grandma was sixteen miles! Why she

THE PRODUCER

"It must be annoying to have to ask your husband for money," said the interested woman.

TODAY'S STOCK MARKETS; FINANCIAL NEWS

METAL STOCKS WEAK TO-DAY

STATE STREET, April 8.—Stock market prices were weak in the early day, although extremely dull. The Wall Street market went off a point or so for the leading issues, with St. Paul noticably weak. The metal stocks seemed to be affected by the weakness of the metal in London, which was off 10s. at the opening.

Locally the market had no breadth whatever and outside of continued weakness in Utah Consolidated there was nothing worthy of notice. The issuance of the Copper Producers' Association report for March showed an increase of 16,620,000 pounds in the American supplies and was extremely disappointing. It had little or no effect on copper stocks however.

Wall Street call money rates stiffened to 4 per cent, this forenoon. This is incidental to the recent gold exports, rendered cut into bank reserves. The market awaited the issuance of the Government crop report, and apparently attempted to discount its contents by letting prices sag. Atchison fell a full point, leading a point St. Paul 1½, and Union Pacific ½.

Amalgamated ran off ¼ points and Smelters ⅛. Steel common held firm. Consolidated Gas 1½. There is no change in the general situation, although Wall Street hears that there is a split among President Taft's cabinet members which may lead to resignations.

The curb market was quiet. First National has discounted this and a call of a $1,250 assessment which has been officially called.

NEW FOURTH BILL BARS TOY PISTOL

The toy pistol and the blank cartridge have got to go, according to the Committee on Mercantile Affairs, which has been receiving pro and con arguments on the subject of the bill.

By the revised draft it is provided that any person selling or having for sale a toy pistol or blank cartridge pistol or cartridges with it is liable to a fine or imprisonment, or both. As to the caps, a cap with the limit is to be two inches, and black gunpowder is the only explosive allowable to use in it.

STATE ST. NEWS FOR INVESTORS

The public is not yet in the humor to buy.

$ $ $

The policy of the manipulative interests at the present time is in the way of specters, county bullish speculators, but so far the results have not been startling.

$ $ $

No efforts are being made to force a boom and market just yet, for at least one of the corporation decisions is expected from the United States Supreme Court in connection with the Harriman case. Immediate effect is expected to be disconcerting.

$ $ $

The market loan account is not large, and so far as can be figured out the stock list is in shape and can summarily read news, pretty well liquidated, so that no very ill effect should be experienced.

$ $ $

In Morgan circles intimations have been made that an increase in the Steel dividend is not likely at this time, although the company is in a position to pay it. The question is as to how long it could be maintained. If there is to be further tariff legislation by Congress it probably would result in the lowering of many duties, those on iron and steel among them, and this would cause a falling off in earnings.

$ $ $

Buying of Brooklyn Rapid Transit is from the right quarter, but there is not enough of it to make much of an impression. The company is well in now so good that it can easily raise the money for the subway across Manhattan Island, should it get the right to construct one.

Too Rock Island issues talked of are suspicious. Construction into Texas of a continental system in which Lehigh Valley, Wabash, Rock Island, Denver & Rio Grande and Western Pacific figure. Nothing definite can be learned in regard to this system.

In February Norfolk & Western increased its coal in gross earnings over last year 25 per cent., for the eight months 20 per cent. The gain is 14 per cent. It is to be supposed that the February rate of gain will be continued to the end of the year, since the road was doing an excellent business a year ago, but the rate for in the year the company has been earning the equivalent of considerable more than 11 per cent. annually on its common stock and is practically certain to show between 11 and 12 per cent. for the entire twelve months.

Nothing convertible bonds are now outstanding or the new ones shortly to be issued in the Rensselaer & Saratoga are to be in the dividend rate of 6 per cent.

$ $ $

As anticipated, increases of gross earnings of the New Haven have begun to fall below the average increase of 12.8 per cent. for the six months' period ending December 31, 1909, over the corresponding period a year ago. Gross then was 10.7 per cent. in February and 11.0 per cent. in March. This reduction in comparative gains is not due so much to smaller figures for January and February as to larger earnings in the corresponding period of the preceding year.

$ $ $

Consumption proper in Great Britain and Germany is on the increase; in fact European consumption has absorbed the widening channels of distribution for the metal; yet the output the world over continues larger than the demand. In Europe the stocks of copper carried by producers are not large in the American sense, but the country on a basis of consumption of 900,000 pounds a day is a burden that cannot make a boom in the face of the bearish statistical reports of curtailment, but mutual wealth show that little has been done in the way of curtailment, and it is admitted that unless steps are taken to curtail output the world over a shortage is likely to occur. Not that the price of copper is high in comparison with that of the few industries which does not contribute to the cost of living or of manufacture. There are too many producers.

$ $ $

The English monetary situation has reached a pass where British judgment on the money market will be governed by the course taken by the Continental and American views will prove the deciding factor. Especially French opinion now that the Bank of France has decided to increase its gold, so far as the Bank of England is concerned. The matter has a serious aspect even for outside countries, as the demand for orders and not for discounts is a foreign one. This one factor alone in a crisis, of course, the consequences are bound to be felt in every quarter of the world. Gradually perhaps less in the United States than elsewhere, but the money holder had no direct connection with the deal.

The ninth annual edition of the Copper Handbook, edited and published by Horace J. Stevens, Houghton, Michigan, is received by the writer. This work has become a standard authority, describes no less than 1,751 copper mines and copper mining companies, in all parts of the world. Upwards of eight hundred new titles have been added, covering descriptions not contained in any previous edition. The new information embraces twenty-four in number, treat of the subject of copper, including: The history, chemistry, metallurgy, intelligence and uses of the metal, and this exercise of the book also has been extended to substitutes, alloys, brands and grades, and a copious glossary. The price is $5.

HEAVY SELLING IN WALL STREET

NEW YORK, April 8.—Liberal selling of stocks in the early trading today in Wall Street resulted in average declines of about 1 point each in the standard issues. Smelters, Amalgamated Copper and St. Paul were under heaviest pressure, and all lost more than a point.

Steel, Reading, Union Pacific and Southern Pacific were 1 point under the closing figures of yesterday. Brooklyn Rapid Transit was relatively firm, although the Interborough-Metropolitan shares lost nearly a point each. Specialties were weak and declined in sympathy with the general list. At the low level the market became extremely dull.

A feature of the early trading was an advance of 5 points in Federal Smelting and Refining. In London American stocks were irregular. Trading in them was very light, but very heavy in the rubber shares. On the curb copper shares were fractionally lower in the early trading.

The Pope and Mr. Roosevelt

A Most Regrettable Incident. The Ex-President, Mr. Roosevelt, Might Have Avoided It.

Copyright, 1910, by American-Journal-Examiner

Mr. Roosevelt, now a distinguished citizen traveling for pleasure and with some attention to politics and advertising at home, failed to see the Pope—although a visit to the latter was included in the ex-President's plan for his stay in Rome.

There is nothing in the incident to excite any Catholic or Protestant, or any other man of common sense. Thousands of distinguished visitors go to Rome, many of them see the Pope, and many do not see him.

The failure of Mr. Roosevelt to visit the Pope is in itself of NO importance. But Mr. Roosevelt has written and cabled to this country about the incident as though it were of the very GRAVEST importance—in fact, he cables with lack of sense of proportion and of sense of the ridiculous. He advises his fellow countrymen not to get excited and fly at each other's throats, because HE DIDN'T SEE THE POPE.

Mr. Roosevelt having taken such a very solemn view of the matter, and apparently being so much exercised concerning the importance of his seeing or not seeing this or that potentate, it is well to discuss the matter and set forth the facts.

To begin with, the incident—it was only an incident—need not have happened. And it would not have happened if Mr. Roosevelt had combined a little more tact with a less profound sense of his own importance.

Mr. Roosevelt HAD ASKED TO SEE THE POPE. The Pope had not invited Mr. Roosevelt to come and see him. He had, however, said that he would be very glad to receive him. And, in response to Mr. Roosevelt's REQUEST, preferred through Minister Leishman, the Pope, undoubtedly with kindness and courtesy, expressed the hope that Mr. Roosevelt would come to see him without visiting certain active, agitating missionaries whose methods have been offensive to the Pope.

It was a plain and simple REQUEST.

There is much nonsense talked by clergymen who shall not be advertised here—to the effect that the Pope had no RIGHT to make any such request of Mr. Roosevelt.

But the Pope had a PERFECT right to make the request. The Pope does not distinguish between Protestant and Catholic. He puts nothing in the way of any visitor to the Vatican or to himself living up to his particular religious beliefs in Rome.

He believes himself to be insulted and discourteously treated by a certain religious organization which has chosen to establish itself outside the door of the Vatican—IN WHICH THE POPE LIVES A PRISONER.

And he certainly has a right to say that he does not care to receive as personal visitors those that by their presence countenance the intruders who have done so much to disturb his peace.

Mr. Roosevelt says with unnecessary haughtiness that no man shall dictate to him as to whom he shall see or whom he shall not see.

Mr. Roosevelt went to see the King in Rome. There are enemies in Rome of the King just as there are enemies of the Pope. There are, for instance, in Rome anarchists and socialistic organizations which demand that the King be put out. There are organizations that demand that he be destroyed by violence if necessary. Would Mr. Roosevelt have considered it such a very great insult if the King had intimated to him courteously that he could not receive as a personal visitor anybody who thought fit to address the anarchistic societies of Rome?

Would not Mr. Roosevelt himself, very likely, when President in Washington, have declined to receive a foreign visitor if that visitor, in spite of a polite intimation, had persisted in addressing some organized body of anarchists in Washington?

No comparison is intended between Protestant missionaries in Rome, however aggressive in their attacks on the Pope personally, and those more dangerous enemies of society, the militant anarchist.

But, since Mr. Roosevelt would admit—AND HE MUST ADMIT—that he would have received kindly a request from the King not to visit such and such a body of disturbing political or anarchistic agitators in Rome, so he might well have received with kindness, and without taking it as an insult, the Pope's polite reminder that if Mr. Roosevelt cared to visit the Pope he must not combine with that visit a personal visit and an apparent approval of religious agitators who have done much to embitter the Pope's already painful life.

Nobody questions Mr. Roosevelt's absolute legal right to decline to accede to the Pope's natural and polite request. Nobody questions the Pope's right to MAKE the request. But there is question as to Mr. Roosevelt's right to assume that the Pope was trying to control his conduct or impose shameful conditions upon him.

The Pope is an old man who, much against his will, with great detriment to his health and happiness and life, has taken on his shoulders the heavy burden of the Papacy, giving up sadly his home and work in Venice.

Mr. Roosevelt understands conditions well enough to know that the Pope is bound absolutely by his duty, bound to a great extent by traditions extending through centuries, bound to protect and respect in the most minute details, and regardless of the greatness or personal importance of any lion killer, THE SUSCEPTIBILITIES AND THE DEEP DEVOTION OF HIS FOLLOWERS THROUGHOUT THE WORLD.

The Pope lives a prisoner, confined in the Vatican because of his convictions. He is now a recluse, shut within narrow walls in a city where his predecessors were rulers and temporal sovereigns.

Mr. Roosevelt, free to fly from continent to continent and from one excitement to another, might dwell with deep sympathy, with very great respect, upon the burdens and the position of that white-haired old man, a prisoner for life, striving earnestly and in a dignified way to protect the great trust laid upon him, and to uphold honorably the traditions and customs of one of the greatest offices that the world has known.

Mr. Roosevelt, it is true, is the former President of eighty millions of people. But he is a private citizen to-day.

The Pope, on the other hand, is the absolute spiritual director, and to a very great extent the temporal adviser and director OF TWO HUNDRED AND FIFTY MILLIONS OF CATHOLICS.

It would not have been too much for Mr. Roosevelt to think over matters carefully before duplicating the unfortunate and unnecessary incident in which Mr. Fairbanks figured with so little credit to himself.

The people will follow Mr. Roosevelt's advice, they will NOT become excited about this matter, and we shall not have Americans, Protestant or Catholic, indulging in foolish religious disputes.

But it would have been just as well if Mr. Roosevelt had not sent that foolish message asking the people to take calmly what is of no importance whatever.

And it would have been better still if Mr. Roosevelt had shown to the Pope the respect and the courtesy that he himself so energetically demands from others.

OH BILLY, WOULD YOU GET ME SOME ICE-CREAM? IT'S SO WARM HERE
SURE MISS GWENDOLIN I AM YOUR WILLING SLAVE.
THE MINX?
1
WHY IT'S BILLY! JUST WHAT I WANTED- IS THAT ICE-CREAM FOR ME?
ER-ER- GOOD EVENING MISS HAZEL.
2
AND WEREN'T YOU BRINGING THAT ICE-CREAM TO ME? COLD, HEARTLESS MAN! WOULD YOU HAVE ME SITTING HERE SO FORLORN AND LONESOME AND NOBODY TO WAIT ON ME?
ER- I WAS TAKING IT TO MISS GWENDOLIN BUT I'LL GET ANOTHER ONE FOR HER.
3
SO IT WAS GWENDOLIN YOU WERE MAKING SHEEPS EYES AT WAS IT? YOU DON'T CARE A BIT MORE FOR ME I CAN SEE THAT!
HONEST MISS HAZEL, I WAS JUST BEING POLITE TO HER. GWENDOLIN IS ALL RIGHT BUT---
4
SHE'S TOO FAT- AND HAS RED HANDS- AND FRECKLES ON HER NOSE- AND SHE'S NOT A BIT GOOD LOOKING--- YES MISS HAZEL, SHE'S AS A CABBAGE PLANT TO A TEA ROSE TO YOU. BELIEVE ME MISS HAZEL, YOU ARE THE ONLY ONE I EVER LOVED. WILL YOU BE MY WIFE.
5
THANK YOU FOR THE COMPARISON, BUT IF THERE'S ONE THING I DISLIKE, IT'S A FICKLE MAN ESPECIALLY IF HE'S A KNOCKER TOO. GOOD NIGHT.
A CABBAGE PLANT AM I? OH- THE WRETCH!

An Important Step in the Greater Boston Movement

Metropolitan Boston, or the metropolitan district, is unlike any other community in the State. Cities have their Mayors and Councils, towns have their Selectmen, and counties their County Commissioners, but the district called Metropolitan Boston, which has spent nearly $80,000,000 on sewer, park and water works, has no government but the Legislature and the Governor, who act through commissioners appointed by the Governor.

The proposed Metropolitan Boston Council, consisting of the responsible executive heads of all of the cities and towns in Metropolitan Boston, would not govern the district, but would bring together the officials who best know the needs and resources of their own communities, to study and consider the improvement and development of the whole section.

They would consider all proposed metropolitan improvements and report to the Legislature whether, in their judgment, the passage of such legislation would be wise or expedient.

They would inevitably discover and recommend many improvements which would benefit the whole district.

They would learn from each other what ordinances, by-laws or regulations have proved most effective in producing efficient, economical and satisfactory municipal government in the thirty-nine cities and towns, and this knowledge would lead to much greater uniformity in these local laws than exists at present.

They would perform the same kind of service for Metropolitan Boston that is performed by the Council of Governors that now meets annually in Washington to advise with the President and with each other for the benefit of the whole country.

They would represent the official response of the municipalities comprising Metropolitan Boston to the spirit of co-operation and "get together" which is now so powerfully moving this community, as exemplified by the new Chamber of Commerce, Boston 1915, the United Improvement Associations and other public spirited organizations.

They would be able, with the counsel and support of the combined commercial and civic forces, to secure for us most of the benefits which should accrue to Boston as the third city of the United States, without the wholesale annexation for which our community may not be ready at the present time.

But it is an important step in the forward movement for a Greater Boston which, ultimately, is bound to come.

The Metropolitan Council bill has been reported favorably to the Legislature.

A policy of sound common sense recommends its intelligent consideration and adoption.
